

Nixon orders review of gas prices

President receives plan for allocation of fuels

President Nixon instructed the Cost of Living Council today to speed up its review of retail gas station prices and decide this week what price increases are allowable.

A presidential spokesman, Gerald L. Warren, said the council had promised to make an upward adjustment in retail gas prices after reviewing data filed by Tuesday.

The council's director, John T. Dunlop, said Friday that the council would start reviewing data on the retail gas price situation Tuesday and authorize dealers to raise their prices by a specific amount.

"Both the President and Dunlop want to clear up this situation as soon as possible," Warren told reporters at the White House. "They want to clear up any confusion that might exist in the minds of dealers."

Retail gasoline station operators in a number of areas began closing over the weekend, triggering a run on available supplies.

Warren said there was no question about the Cost of Living Council permitting an increase in retail prices and the only uncertainties were the size of the increase and its timing.

The White House announcement came as many gas stations closed in protest of the Phase IV price controls.

"The President wants the review expedited and a decision out this week," Warren said.

Because of what they said was uncertainty over price increases even after Dunlop promised boosts would be permitted, many gas station operators went ahead with previously announced plans to shut down.

Getting gasoline meant waiting in line in some parts of the country during the weekend because of protest closings, but even on the hard hit West Coast, where the shutdowns caused a 50 per cent reduction in traffic in parts of Northern California, there were some gas stations open in all communities.

In Baltimore, Maryland independent service station operators voted Sunday night to close indefinitely beginning today because of what the Maryland Eastern Shore dealers said were unfair price controls.

About 65 Mobil dealers in Syracuse, N.Y., voted to close today to protest a one-cent-a-gallon wholesale price increase they say they are unable to pass on to customers.

An abandoned gasoline station in Gleneden Beach, Ore., was taken over by national guardsmen to assure a fuel supply for governors and officials at the Western Governors Conference.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has on his desk a contingency plan for mandatory allocation of fuels and may have to put it into effect, says White House domestic counselor Melvin R. Laird.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said today Nixon was reviewing all aspects of the fuel situation but had not reached any decision yet on implementation of the contingency plan. The President's chief energy adviser, John A. Love, had said Nixon might make up his mind early this week.

"I personally feel that it may be necessary to go forward with a program in this area, and we may not be able to wait for action by the Congress," Laird said in a Sunday television interview (CBS "Face the Nation.")

Laird did not spell out the scope of the plan, but the administration is known to have developed a contingency plan for allocation of supplies of crude oil, petroleum products including gasoline and fuels such as propane and butane.

Fair trial jeopardized

Agnew will try to block probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's lawyer says he will file suit this week to stop the federal investigation of Agnew's alleged involvement in a Maryland kickback scheme because of the flood of news leaks about the case.

The apparent hardening of Agnew's strategy, including formation of a defense fund, came as attention refocused on the Senate investigation of the Watergate scandal after a seven-week recess.

Agnew attorney Judah Best told UPI, "There have been an inordinate number of disclosures that would preclude the right to a fair trial."

He did not say exactly what the legal arguments would be, but indicated that the leaks violated Agnew's constitutional rights.

The Washington Post Sunday reported that the papers have already been drawn up but will probably not be filed before Wednesday.

Presidential adviser Melvin L. Laird said news stories that he had been the source of reports that Agnew was going to resign were "false."

Laird appeared on CBS' Face The Nation Sunday.

He refused to comment on last Thursday's meeting between Agnew and President Nixon, calling it "a serious matter, and one that should not be discussed by the White House staff."

Agnew supporters have contended that information damaging to the vice president has come from the White House.

Agnew spokesman J. Marsh Thomson said Sunday the formation of a defense fund to finance the case, announced by Agnew's office Saturday, "shows the kind of approach he's going to take."

Peron nearly repeats record victory of 1951

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Juan Domingo Peron, the aging symbol of strongman rule in South America, piled up more than 60 per cent of the vote Sunday to regain Argentina's presidency 18 years after he was ousted in a military coup.

The 77-year-old Peron, who served as president from 1946 to 1955, scored a landslide victory over a four-man field, winning more than twice the votes of his closest rival.

Peron collected 61.5 per cent of the vote, nearly matching Argentina's greatest presidential victory margin in 1951 when he defeated a five-man field with 62.4 per cent.

Fierce fighting breaks out on all 3 Indochina fronts

SAIGON (UPI) — The Indochina war flared into fierce combat on all three fronts Monday. A South Vietnamese ranger station was believed overrun, and new fighting broke out in Laos and Cambodia.

A battalion of between 300 and 400 South Vietnamese rangers, former Montagnard mercenaries for the U.S. Green Berets, lost radio contact with headquarters while under heavy Communist assault, military spokesmen said.

The rangers reported by radio Saturday that Communist forces were storming their base at Le Minh, in the Central Highlands 240 miles north of Saigon, at noon. By dusk, all contact with the defenders was lost.

Asked if Le Minh had been overrun, a government spokesman said, "We believe so."

Hunt links Nixon aide to plan to implicate JFK in Diem killing plot

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt testified today that the White House, trying to win the Catholic vote for President Nixon in 1972, tried to prove falsely that the Kennedy administration had plotted the 1963 assassination of President Diem of South Vietnam.

Hunt, first witness as the Senate Watergate hearings resumed after a seven-week recess, said he had been "directed" by Charles W. Colson, then a special counsel to Nixon, to concoct phony State Department cables to implicate Kennedy in the deaths of Ngo Dinh Diem and his brother-in-law, Ngo Dinh Nhu.

"I believe it was desired by Mr. Colson, or at least some of his colleagues, to establish that a Catholic U.S. administration had conspired in the assassination of a Catholic chief of state of another country," Hunt testified.

The implication was that Catholic voters would vote for Nixon when they learned that Kennedy, a Democrat, had been implicated in the assassination.

Hunt, one of the original Watergate Seven who pleaded guilty in January to conspiracy, burglary, bugging and wiretapping in the bugging scandal, said he believed he had been acting as a secret government agent when he broke into the Democrats' offices in the Watergate complex and participated in the burglary at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

He said in the aftermath he felt "crushed by the failure of my govern-

Skylab crew preparing to come home Tuesday

HOUSTON (UPI) —The Skylab 2 astronauts stuffed the accumulated booty of two months of orbital research into the close quarters of their ferry spacecraft today and made final preparations for a Tuesday afternoon splashdown off the coast of California.

Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma also fiddled for the final time—they hoped—with a space station systems problem prior to unhooking the Apollo ferry ship for the short trip home.

The three astronauts were expected to land at 3:20 p.m. PDT Tuesday in the Pacific Ocean 224 miles southwest of San Diego.

The weather conditions for the splashdown point were predicted to be satisfactory with 17 mile per hour winds, waves of five feet, 10-mile visibility and scattered clouds at 1,800 feet.

Flight controllers said Hurricane Irah, located several hundred miles south of Baja California, should pose no threat to the recovery. The storm had 85 m.p.h. winds and was moving at 11 m.p.h. toward the predicted splashdown point.

"I wonder if there's not a hurricane just to the north of our location up here?" asked Garriott as the station passed 270 miles above Baja. "It's the best developed hurricane that I think we've seen with a very clear eye."

The hurricane, which was upgraded from a tropical storm Sunday night, had 35 m.p.h. winds extending 200 miles from the center. The only problem would come if the command ship overshot the target point by about 400 miles south which would put it in the fringe of the strong winds.

"Everybody's ready," Bean told ground controllers after the pilots awakened at 3 a.m. EDT for the next-to-last day in space. "Watch out today. We're going to get this thing all put to bed."

The crewmen were in cheerful moods and joked about their "old man" member, Garriott, 42. Mission Control reported to them the aging George Blanda of the Oakland Raiders kicked four field goals to beat the Miami Dolphins, 12-7, Sunday.

"Great scott," Bean said. "There's some good news right there. The old fellows are coming back. That's really good news for Owen. He's been worried."

"He's letting his hair grow. The first few days we thought we had gray tape on his hair, but we realized that it was just his hair."

San Dimas, 18, Rowlander die in car crash

ANAHEIM — A young San Dimas man was killed and another seriously injured in a traffic crash which also killed a Rowland Heights man early Saturday. John Dale Schober, 18, 507 N. Lone Hill Ave., the driver, was killed with a passenger, Arden Eugene Kline, 42, 18148 Los Palacios St., Rowland Heights.

Another passenger, Fred J. Strong, 18, 808 Oceanbluff Ave., San Dimas, was injured and was taken to Anaheim Memorial Hospital. Strong suffered major injuries, a spokesman for the California Highway Patrol reported today.

Investigating officers said the accident occurred as Schober drove westbound on the Riverside Freeway at 3 a.m. Saturday. They said the victims' car left the roadway and crashed into an overpass abutment at Tustin Avenue.

The reason for the crash has not been determined, the spokesman said.

11 types of murder covered

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today signed into law legislation reinstating the death penalty in California for 11 types of murder beginning Jan. 1.

"There is no way of knowing how many lives of innocent, law-abiding citizens this legislation will save," Reagan said in the historic bill signing ceremony attended by Attorney General Evelle J. Younger, Sen. George Deukmejian and other capital punishment advocates.

"In ceremonies such as this I usually say 'I am happy to sign,' or 'It is a pleasure to sign this bill,' or words to that effect," the governor said. "I don't have those feelings today."

"But I do have the feeling of satisfaction that comes from doing something you know is right," Reagan added.

The bill by Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, would make death in the San Quentin gas chamber mandatory for these criminals:

Hired assassins; police slayers; life term convicts who kill guards; mass and repeat murderers; train wreckers; persons who kill witnesses to crime; and persons who commit murder during rape, robbery, kidnapping, burglary or lewd acts involving children.

The legislation was in response to voter approval last November of an initiative, Prop. 17, granting lawmakers the power to restore the death penalty despite two adverse court decisions.

The California Supreme Court ruled the supreme penalty unconstitutional in February, 1972. Later the U.S. Supreme Court agreed capital punishment as then administered was unconstitutional, but indicated state legislatures could reimpose the death penalty on a mandatory basis.

Deukmejian's bill cleared the legislature on lopsided votes, 52-12 in the Assembly and 27-12 in the Senate, after being bottled up for months in the hostile Assembly Criminal Justice Committee.

Because of intense public pressure, the committee—controlled by death penalty foes—finally cleared the way for final passage.

Noting that the initiative passed by a 2-to-1 margin, Reagan said the outcome "shows that under our system of government, the people's will can ultimately prevail despite numerous roadblocks."

California's 106 condemned men at the time the San Quentin gas chamber was shut down included Sirhan B. Sirhan, assassin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, and mass killer Charles Manson.

The new law will not affect them nor anyone else convicted prior to Jan. 1, 1974.

It may be years before anyone actually receives the death sentence because of expected legal attacks to the measure. Opponents such as the American Civil Liberties Union has warned of "grave" constitutional defects and threatened to test it in the courts.

If and when the time comes for the death penalty to be imposed on a convicted murderer, the San Quentin gas chamber will be ready.

International Monetary Fund meet opens in Africa

Nations beat drums of hunger and inflation

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — The United States and other Western nations today gave the twin crises of hunger and inflation priority over world monetary reform at the first meeting of their five-day annual session.

The meeting brought together 3,500 delegates from 126 International Monetary Fund (IMF) member nations—the biggest financial session in history. It opened to the beat of African drums, the cry of Kenyan dancers and a warning from Kenyan President Jomo Kenyatta that "the world cannot continue on its present course" without disaster.

Monetary reform had been expected to take up most of the five-day meeting. But an agreement Sunday by major industrial nations to produce a reform package within 10 months settled that matter and left the forum open for other matters.

"The world cannot continue on its present course," Kenyatta told delegates in the woodpaneled Kenyatta Conference Center hall. "If it does, monetary and economic situations similar to those of 40 years ago would be inevitable."

While monetary matters figured prominently in this week's discussions, he said, "a more fundamental crisis facing the international community is the economic and social development of the peoples of the third world. The whole world is watching."

World Bank President Robert S. McNamara announced a record $22 billion budget for 1974-78 to help millions of persons in underdeveloped nations who are "degraded by disease, illiteracy, malnutrition and squalor."

As he spoke, towering Masai tribesmen, driven this year from traditional grasslands by the worst drought in recorded African history, grazed their hungry cattle in Nairobi suburbs within view of the 32-story conference center.

Johannese Witteveen, the new IMF managing director, urged the non-Communist nations represented here to work together to halt the onward rush of worldwide inflation, which "could ultimately exact a price that today is only dimly discernible.

"It should be one of our most essential tasks to bring this inflation under control," Witteveen said. He predicted that monetary reform would ease inflationary pressures, but warned that the world still might need "some form of incomes policy to act directly on prices and wages which are not determined competitively."

Oregon ordered to cut power in face of crisis

GLENEDEN BEACH, Ore. (UPI) —The threat of an electric power shortage in the Pacific Northwest is so strong that Oregon Gov. Tom McCall Sunday ordered all outdoor lighting not needed for security purposes to be turned off starting tonight.

Western governors were also told at their annual conference that plans for mandatory cuts in electric usage of up to 25 per cent should be ready by Nov. 1.

E.F. Timme, coordinator for the Northwest Power Pool, said the plans will start with a 10 per cent cutback that could be expanded to 25 per cent in four phases, if necessary.

The governors also discussed how to provide fair shares of electricity for upstream and downstream states along the Columbia River, and whether environmental restrictions should be relaxed during the energy crisis.

The governors said they feared the possibility of federal intervention if they were unable to come up with a solution of their own.

Don Hodel, administrator for the Bonneville Power Administration, said the federal government has no clear authority to impose mandatory cuts on electricity.

Hodel also warned governors of other states at the conference that they should not consider themselves remote from the crisis.

He reminded them that surplus power previously available is no longer there. That will mean higher costs to generate their own electricity as well as more reliance on power sources that pollute the air, he said.

Timme told the governors that environmental restrictions must be eased to help solve the shortage of electricity.

But Washington Gov. Dan Evans, chairman of the National Governors Conference, strongly disagreed.

"Arguments that environmentalists cause our present shortage are simply fallacious," Evans declared.

He said present environmental controls were hard-fought, long overdue, and should not be altered.

Chile's Nobel winner, Pablo Neruda, critic of U.S. firms, dies of cancer

SANTIAGO (UPI) —Pablo Neruda, the Nobel Prizewinning poet and leftist diplomat, died Sunday night in a Santiago clinic at the age of 69.

Neruda, a member of Chile's Communist Party and an ambassador under the late President Salvador Allende, died 12 days after a military junta overthrew the Marxist regime he fought for and served.

Dr. Fergio Drapper, Neruda's personal physician, said the poet was suffering from cancer and had gone into a coma Sunday.

Neruda's poetry bitterly attacked U.S. companies operating in Latin America, and he called himself an enemy of America's "aggressive" policies. He won the 1971 Nobel Prize for Literature in 1971.

One of his most frequently quoted works says God, at the moment of creation, decided to give the most succulent parts of the world to a single American corporation.

Neruda, who served as Chile's ambassador to France until he resigned because of failing health, had been a patient at Santamaria Clinic in Santiago since Sept. 19.

PABLO NERUDA

Neruda, considered by many the greatest Spanish-language poet of his time, adopted his pen name nearly 50 years ago because his father considered poetry a waste of time.

Born Ricardo E. Neftali Reyes Bascalto, he won the Nobel Prize for literature in 1971, the second Chilean to get the award. His former grade school teacher, poetess Gabriela Mistral, won the prize in 1945.

By the late 1930's, critics spoke of two periods in 20th Century Spanish-language poetry, "Before and After Neruda," because of the changes he wrought in language, meter, rhythm and rhyme.

Appointed ambassador to France two years ago by Chilean President Salvador Allende, who was slain in the coup that overthrew his regime, Neruda resigned the post 12 months ago because of failing health.

"Paris and Isla Negra are the two great loves of my life," he said.

Isla Negra, a tiny village on the rocky Pacific coast southwest of Santiago, was where Neruda lived out his last years in a villa studded with artifacts stripped from wrecked ships and a huge collection of sea shells.

Married three times, Neruda's only child, a daughter, died in Paris at the age of 8.

Neruda joined the Chilean Communist party in a public ceremony in 1945 in a Santiago movie theater.

He visited the United States in 1943 and 1966 and denied he was anti-American, only against the U.S. "aggressive" policies.

"I've always held the warmest sentiment for the United States" and described himself as a "humble disciple" of Walt Whitman, who he said had "influenced all modern poets."

Colson's instructions — leaked the phony cables to William Lambert, then a reporter for the now-defunct Life magazine. Hunt said that to his knowledge, Lambert never used them.

Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., triggered an intra-committee squabble when he objected to the line of questioning. He said he felt it had "nothing to do with the presidential campaign of 1972" that the committee is investigating.

"I think the line of questioning will show ... there was an effort by Mr. Colson to try to discredit the Kennedy administration and therefore the Democratic party during the election by linking them to the assassination of Premier Diem and bring the Catholic vote away from the Democratic party," responded Chief Committee Counsel Samuel Dash. "To show the Catholic Democratic President had a role in the assassination of a Catholic premier."

New library site to open in Claremont

CLAREMONT — Interim library service for local patrons will begin at 1375 N. Indian Hill Blvd., Monday at 1 p.m.

The library staff has completed moving books to a 22,748-square-foot site north of the Griswold's Old School House complex.

The old library in use for 45 years at 169 W. Second St. was closed in a change-of-address ceremony Sept. 8 to permit the library move.

The old library will be razed to make way for a new county library which will house up to 100,000 volumes.

Library service hours at the interim site will be as follows: Monday through Wednesday, 1 to 9 p.m.; Thursday and Friday, 1 to 6 p.m.; and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Woman burned in oil conflagration

HACIENDA HEIGHTS — Mrs. Alice Hutton of 15390 La Belle Ave. was treated for second degree burns Sunday morning from a fire that caused $10,000 damage to her $50,000 home. Firemen said Mrs. Hutton was heating cooking oil on the stove in her kitchen when the overheated oil flared into flames. The flames spread to the walls and to a bedroom over the kitchen.

Mrs. Hutton, who was cooking breakfast, was treated at the scene for burns to her left arm and her forehead. She was later treated by her own doctor.

The fire gutted the kitchen, burned portions of the upstairs bedroom and did extensive heat and smoke damage throughout the structure.

Authorities search for CIW escapee

CHINO — Law enforcement agencies today are searching for a woman convicted of armed robbery out of Los Angeles who escaped from the California Institution for Women Sunday night.

Sought is Linda L. Billington, 19, a Caucasian, 5 feet 4, 115 pounds, with extremely long brown hair and hazel eyes. She was last seen wearing jeans and a brown and orange multicolored blouse.

CIW authorities said that Miss Billington turned up missing from her cottage about 10 p.m. Sunday night with another inmate, Debra Oliver, 20, serving a term on conviction of voluntary manslaughter. Miss Oliver was later found hiding inside the grounds of the women's prison.

Bill protects defense workers

By JOHN HALL

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., proposed legislation today to require defense contractors to plan for continued employment of their workers in the event their contracts are terminated.

A McGovern amendment to the $21.9 billion military procurement authorization bill now before the Senate, would make such advance planning a condition for receiving government business.

McGovern said "severe work fluctuations" in defense industry were a major problem. In recent years, cuts in defense programs have ended thousands of jobs, hitting particularly hard on the West Coast.

"It is entirely appropriate for the arms contractors to focus on what happens to their workers and their communities when military contracts are phased out," McGovern said.

His amendment also would require the Pentagon to give advance notice of future closings of military installations.

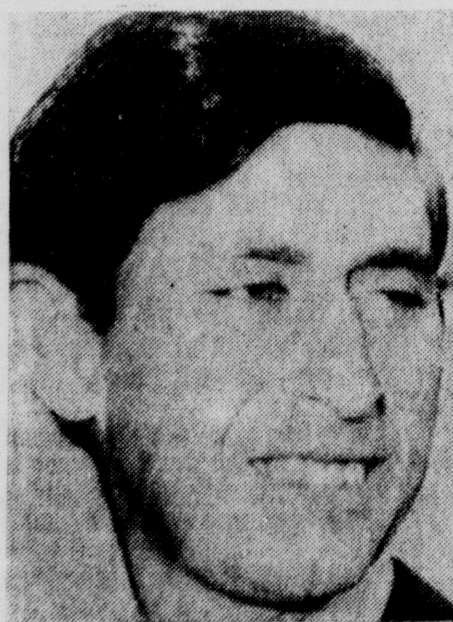

Youth retrieved from canyon perch

AZUSA — A teen-age Cucamonga youth was rescued from his perch about 100 feet above a canyon floor north of here Sunday afternoon after he got stranded there.

Albert L. Redick, 16, of 8220 Maiden St., clung to a bush until San Dimas Deputy Sheriff J. T.M. Oliver lowered himself 25 feet from a road above Redick's position and secured him with a rope. Oliver remained with Redick until other deputies arrived and the pair was lowered to the canyon floor.

Redick became stranded on loose shale while hiking near Camp Williams in the east fork of San Gabriel Canyon.

Gang attacks, beats youths in Ontario

ONTARIO — Two Ontario teenagers were attacked and beaten by a group of 20 to 30 youths Saturday night as they were walking home on Sun-kist Street and Sultana Avenue police reported.

The two suffered numerous bruises and abrasions in the attack, but were not hospitalized.

Police said the youths were stopped by the group who called them over and told them to remove a fender from a damaged car. When the youths said they needed tools to take off the fender they were attacked. Both youths managed to break away from their assailants, who were hitting and kicking them.

While one was running, he said the assailants climbed into several cars and chased him towards the General Electric Co. plant. He said they knocked him down with one of cars and began beating him again. He told police he managed to get away again and go for help in the plant.

Police said the other youth was contacted later at his home. He recalled the same events leading to the attack, and said he got away from the group temporarily but was again caught and beaten.

D.C. post for Claremont official

CLAREMONT — Norman R. King, deputy city manager since February, 1969, has resigned his position effective mid-October to take a $23,000-a-year post of assistant director for policy development in the new Office of Policy Analysis in Washington, D.C.

King said that the assignment is for one year and might be extended. He explained the Office of Policy Analysis as a newly-created division of the National League of Cities and the United States Conference of Mayors.

He said the office would integrate the findings of studies conducted by major urban research organizations such as Rand, the joint center at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Brookings Institute into over-all policy objectives for the nation's cities.

King said he shares the concern of many that little effort has been made by the federal government to develop a coordinated national urban policy. Consequently, he stated, "most direction comes more or less ad hoc from the various urban bureaucracies such as HEW, HUD or the executive office, with little attempt or ability to evaluate the impact of its policies on other programs or to involve local governments in the solution of urban problems."

King said a great deal of "high-quality" urban research is being done in the U.S. The Office of Policy Analysis hopes to provide a bridge between the findings and the public, and the private organizations providing services.

"Of particular interest to me," King said, "will be the attempt of the new office to develop urban indicators to provide a more definitive and meaningful measure of the decline and improvement of the quality of urban life in the U.S."

Crusade picks chairman of 'loan' panel

Jack K. Horton, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Southern California Edison Co., will serve as chairman of the loaned executive program of this year's United Crusade campaign in the San Gabriel-Pomona Valley Region.

Horton was vice chairman of last year's campaign.

Loaned executives remain on company payroll while working in the campaign.

United Crusade, the annual fund-raising drive of United Way and American Red Cross chapters, conducts a public appeal each fall to raise funds to support human care services provided by more than 250 voluntary agencies.

Cab fare increase eyed by Claremont's council

CLAREMONT — A request for an increase in taxicab rates, sought by Paul's Yellow Cab Co., Pomona, will be one of many items to come before the City Council at its 7:30 p.m. meeting Tuesday in the council chamber.

Owner Gene R. Stalians asked that the meter rates for the first one-sixth mile be raised from 45 to 65 cents, with 20 cents each additional one-third mile remain the same.

Stalians said the increase would give his employees a 9 per cent increase for cost of living and the taxi firm a 6 per cent increase to offset costs and to improve profits.

Public hearings by the council include nuisance abatement of abandoned homes; an appeal by Lewis Homes Inc. for a reduction of lot size from 13,000 square feet to 10,000 square feet on a parcel on Base Line Road between Claremont Heights Drive and Padua Avenue; and he future alignment of Claremont Boulevard between Foothill Boulevard and Padua Avenue.

Harold Bailin, president of the Foothill Freeway Association, will be present to seek approval of a new Foothill Freeway proposal

Soda bottle is instrument in assault charge

ONTARIO A 22-year-old Pomona man booked in the West End Jail early today is accused of throwing a soda bottle at another man in the 1300 block of east Eighth Street, striking him in the face.

Harvey Allen Powers of 2415 Tampa St., Pomona, was arrested for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon by police shortly after the bottle throwing incident was reported Sunday night. Police said Powers, in a vehicle with three other men, drove up beside another car driven by Jay Quest Conkle, 25, of 7749 Lion St., Cucamonga and exchanged a few angry words.

Powers then threw the soda bottle at Conkle's car, hitting a passenger, Jimmie Purrell Campbell, 26, of Ontario in the head, police said. Campbell was not injured seriously and was not hospitalized.

Powers was arrested at Eighth Street and Grove Avenue by police.

Wedding night spent in jail

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — For most people their wedding night is a treasured memory. Frank Casares would just as soon forget his.

Casares, 18, and 14 other persons were arrested at the wedding dance after four policemen, responding to a complaint, were beaten.

It took 40 officers more than an hour to restore order as many of the 250 guests at the wedding were involved in the melee, police said.

Nine adults and six juveniles were arrested, including Casares, who was booked for battery on a police officer and resisting arrest. He spent his wedding night in jail.

N.Y. Times probe:

No taxes allowed Nixon to buy homes

NEW YORK (UPI) —The New York Times said Sunday that an investigation of President Nixon's personal finances turned up evidence that $803,213 in undisclosed funds used to finance his private homes probably came from paying little or no income taxes, and not from campaign money.

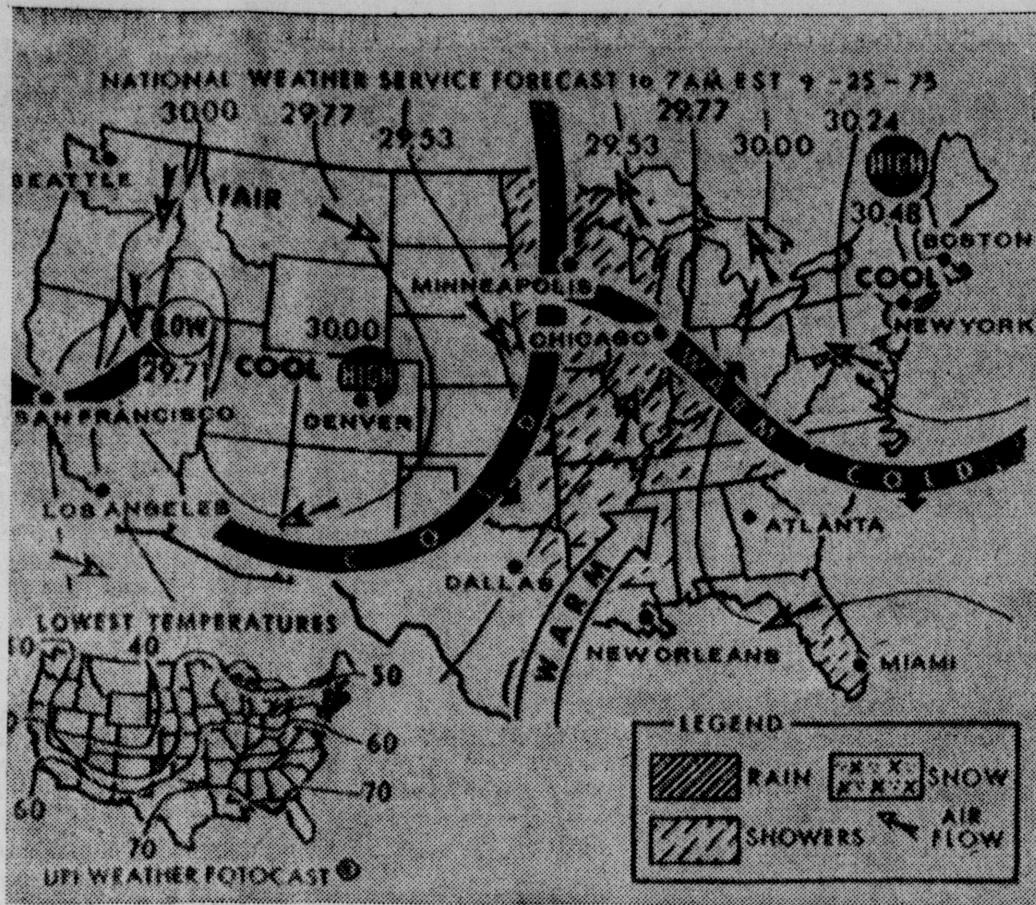

White House accounts of the real estate transactions show that Nixon spent $392,521 in personal funds for his Key Biscayne, Fla., property and $1,200,682 for his San Clemente, Calif., home.

"Of this total of $1,593,213 spent by the President, it is possible to locate the source of only $790,000, which Mr. Nixon borrowed, including $625,000 from Robert H. Abplanalp, the millionaire industrialist," the Times said. The White House has said a part of this loan was eventually assumed by C.G. Rebozo, another presidential friend.

Thieves hit gypsies

PONTEFRAC, England (UPI) —Thieves stole more than $100,000 from the trailer of the leader of a gypsy family who was holding the money in his capacity as "banker," police said Sunday.

Jack Lee, 73, a semi-retired horse dealer, kept the money in sacks inside the trailer. They said Lee left the trailer to take a phone call and when he returned the money was gone.

Doesn't think he wants it

Being president 'awesome,' 'frightening,' says Reagan

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, a favorite in the polls for the 1976 Republican presidential nomination, says he doesn't think he wants to be president.

Connally said he was terrified by the thought of occupying the White House and "it's a task you have to dedicate the rest of your life to, to the exclusion of everything else."

Reagan went one step beyond Connally's "I'm not at all sure" reply and answered, "I don't think so" when asked whether he would like to be president.

He responded: "I think Connally's answer is as right as anybody's. I don't think so. I think any man's answer would have to be the same. He is really committing the rest of his life—his very way of life — restricting his freedom."

Reagan's press secretary, Edwin J. Gray, interrupted the interview to ask the governor whether he wanted to let his "I don't think so" comment stand.

Ecologically sound

Reagan's press secretary,

Edwin J. Gray, interrupted the interview to ask the governor whether he wanted to let his "I don't think so" comment stand.

"I don't know a different way to say it," replied Reagan. "It's a frightening and awesome thing. Yet at the same time it must be one of the greatest challenges that could come to a man."

Reagan observed, with a grin, "If you have beliefs and convictions, there's an excitement and fulfillment in implementing those beliefs, like there is in this job."

In an August Gallup poll, Reagan tied with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as the top choice for the Republican nomination. Without Agnew on the list, Reagan easily finished first, running 2 to 1 ahead of New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

Chrysler workers back on the job

DETROIT (UPI) The assembly lines at Chrysler Corp. began to roll again today as the shortest national strike in the history of the United Auto Workers came to an end.

The nine-day strike against the smallest of the "Big Three" automakers officially ended Sunday when the UAW announced that its rank-and-file membership overwhelmingly approved a new three-year contract.

With 38 out of 42 Chrysler production and maintenance locals counted, the vote was 103,907 in favor of the new pact and 16,260 opposed.

The new contract, which the UAW hopes will set the pattern for negotiations with Ford and General Motors, limits mandatory overtime and offers a company-paid dental plan beginning in the second year.

It also provides for full retirement benefits after 30 years on the job and salary boosts of five per cent in the first year and three per cent in the second and third years.

Although most of the UAW's 127,500 Chrysler workers returned to work today, both Chrysler and the union said it will be a day or two before all 85 Chrysler plants in the U.S. and Canada are rolling at full capacity. They cited time delays in formally notifying locals of the end of the strike.

In a joint statement, UAW President Leonard Woodcock and vice president Douglas Fraser said:

"The Chrysler workers' heavy vote for ratification shows their overwhelming acceptance of the breakthrough gains in this contract's economic area and the substantial improvement in working conditions that the union won for them."

The UAW's 10,000 white collar workers vote on ratification today and Tuesday, with endorsement a certainty.

Negotiators for the UAW begin contract talks with Ford today.

BOOK BURNING — Soldier sets fire to pamphlets and books during military operation Sunday in downtown Santiago. A powerful bomb exploded in a fashionable area near the U.S. Consulate.

Americans fleeing Chile tell of beatings, executions during coup

By United Press International Americans who were in Chile at the time of the military coup told this weekend of severe beatings and as many as 25,000 persons killed during the uprising.

In Miami, Adam and Pat Garrett-Schach, graduate students from the University of Wisconsin, said they saw 400 or 500 persons executed by firing squad and numberless brutal beatings during their imprisonment as suspected foreign agents.

They said the police arrested them a few days after the death of President Salvador Allende on suspicion of being either Communist or CIA agents. They were held with thousands of others at the National Football Stadium.

"We heard the beatings and saw the beatings," said Garrett-Schach. "We heard and saw between 400 and 500 persons executed by firing squads. Right out on the playing field. They were led out in groups of 10 to 30."

He said they were released after the U.S. consul showed authorities telegrams from officials in the United States who demanded they be let go.

Dr. Phillip L. Polakoff of New York, a medical officer with the U.S. Public Health Service, said, "A physician told me he saw two corpses on each of the four street corners outside his home one morning. The daughter of a wealthy merchant said a group of military men 'asked' her if they could temporarily leave a truckload of corpses on her patio."

Polakoff said that a few days after the Sept. 11 coup soldiers pointed a gun at his throat and questioned him for three hours before they let him go. He said he saw no bloodshed himself, but he was told of beatings and executions "I think the bloodshed is just starting in the country," he said.

Steve Tallman, 18, of Ventura, Calif., a member of the touring U.S. swim team that was trapped in Chile during the revolt, said he and two others were pinned down in the Santiago YMCA for three days while troops and Allende supporters fired at each other in the streets.

"When we tried to leave, we were repeatedly shot at," he said. "At that point we realized we would have made great hostages, and we began to get scared."

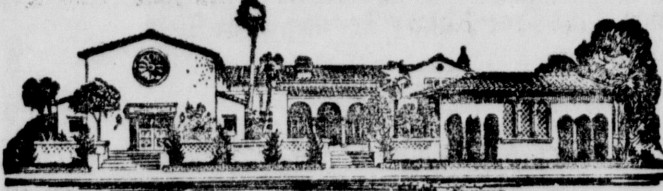

They finally got out and flew home Thursday.

Beamed energy

Someday in the next century solar energy may be captured by space satellite. One plan envisions huge collecting panels, each as much as 25 square miles in area, covered with the same kind of solar cells already used by many spacecraft to change sunlight to electric power. The energy would be beamed to earth by microwave.

BEATING THE HEAT—Two members of a Baltimore family found a way to avoid indoor stuffiness in the

Britons want IRA outlawed again

LONDON (UPI) "The government of the Irish Republic believes that a period of four days is sufficient notice for your government to signify its intentions in the matter of the military evacuation," said the roughly typed letter addressed to the British Foreign Office.

"Our government reserves the right of appropriate action without further notice if, upon the expiration of this period of grace, the conditions remain unimproved," it added. It was signed "O'Leigh na h'Eireann (Irish Republican Army.)"

Four days later seven explosions tore down electric power cables and damaged power stations in London, Birmingham, Manchester and Northumberland.

The date was Jan. 12, 1939—one that still brings back uncomfortable memories for middle aged and elderly Britons.

It launched one of the most violent and destructive bombing campaigns ever carried out by the Irish Republican Army (IRA) in this country.

In many ways it was ominously like the present wave of bombing attacks in London. On Feb. 4, 1939, large bombs left in baggage lockers rocked two London subway stations.

In succeeding weeks bombs damaged a bridge across the river Thames in London, exploded in industrial Birmingham, Liverpool and Coventry and wrecked more than 20 mail boxes in the capital. Tear gas bombs created panic in two downtown London movie houses. Incendiary devices lit fires in eight London hotels.

One summer Saturday evening two London banks were blown up. A bomb exploded in the "Chamber of Horrors" at Madame Tussauds waxworks, demolishing an effigy of King Henry VIII.

With Europe only weeks away from the outbreak of World War II, the British government cracked down swiftly.

It introduced a "Prevention of Violence Bill" into parliament, authorizing tight control of immigration from Ireland, the right of deportation of Irish residents, registration of all Irish living in Britain and detention of suspects through April. The pipeline carries water from the sea in the northern Galilee region south to agricultural settlements in the arid northern Negev.

Now, Kantor said, the pumps may be shut down again from October until April. He said a decision will come shortly, and added, "there is a very good chance that the pumps will be stopped."

Last January marked the first time since the pipeline went into operation in 1964 that it had been shut down. There are no artificial sources of water in Israel, though plans for desalination and sewage recycling plants are in the pilot or drawing board stages.

"There is a grave decline in the level of water in the lake of the country," Kantor said.

"Israelis will have to change their way of life (if they want water to drink.)"

"It's been a tough year," he said. "In taking into account whether we will shut the pumps, we are taking into consideration that there may be a complete drought."

"We're now rechecking our data and trying to weigh all the possibilities. It's a hard decision to make because it will hurt somebody."

Those who will be hurt hardest will be the farmers in the northern Negev who will be forced to cut back on planting because less water will be available for irrigation and sprinkling, he said.

The sea of Galilee has dropped three feet in a year. It supplies about 25 per cent of Israel's water needs.

Israel's 3 million people consume about 1.5 billion gallons of water a day.

Israel may reduce water supply

TEL AVIV (UPI) —Israel, a land where sand dunes rise in the suburbs of its biggest city, now uses as much water every day as nature can provide. Beyond that, the dry taste of danger sets in.

"We have reached the total capacity that nature provides," Water Commissioner Menahem Kantor said last week. "What we are allowed by nature and what we do pump is being pumped. We cannot use any more."

"There is always danger whenever you are reaching such a degree of use of water resources. If we have a long cycle of drought, we'll be in trouble."

Last winter's rainy season, which generally produces the heaviest rainfall from December through February, was drier than usual. Though a boon for the tourists, talk of drought already was in the air.

Consequently, all pumping from the Sea of Galilee into the national water carrier was halted from January

Oswald: "I was an Easterner then and we didn't take kindly to the idea that someone from Indiana would develop a better convention than we had. I am probably the first Easterner to start using it and I know I am the first oldtime expert to admit the existence of Easley Blackwood and his excellent convention."

Jim: "Knowing you, I also assume that you were the first man to start modifying it."

Oswald: "It may be so. The first Blackwood modification was to use the five-club response to show no aces or four aces. It seemed that anyone could tell which holding was being shown. It also seemed that when five clubs showed four aces there was room to ask for kings."

Jim: "Today's hand which I made up illustrates how this works. South checks for aces and finds that North holds all four. He checks for kings; finds North has the missing one and bids seven no-trump with surety of success."

Oswald: "They might get there without this modification but it was a cinch with it."

St. Paul's School names new principal

POMONA — St. Paul's Lutheran School will begin its 26th year of Christian education with an enrollment of 150 students on Sept. 11.

Marvin Schaus, a member of the school's staff for 15 years, has been named principal for the new year at St. Paul's. In addition to his duties as principal Schaus serves as director of music for the church and will teach in the areas of music, German and physical education.

Staff members of the school are Mrs. Margaret Schmitz, kindergarten; Mrs. Jeanne Gehrke, grades 1 and 2; Miss Linda Daeke, grades 3 and 4; and Mrs. Ruby Reeves, grades 5 and 6. Grades 7 and 8 will be assigned to a new teacher at the school.

Community colleges

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Enrollment in California's 92-campus community college system will reach an estimated 981,000 during the 1973-74 school year, according to the chancellor's office.

The House is not a home

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

If YOU got elected to Congress and had authorization to hire four or five secretaries, public relations representatives, receptionists and what not at salaries ranging from $28,000 to $14,000, it would be only natural to hire your wife, brother-in-law, son-in-law and other in-laws and outlaws of the family tribe.

Congressmen get $42,500 a year from you and me, plus a cornucopia of travel expenses, entertainment funds, medical coverage and other fringe benefits, but they do not have to pay the salaries of their employees (i.e. family). So it's all gravy.

When the excesses of this nepotism from the Russian word for cupid came to light some years ago, public indignation was aroused. People were sore that THEY couldn't put THEIR relatives on the federal payroll. In the wake of the hue and cry, Congress reluctantly passed an anti-nepotism law, and Congressional brothers-in-law had to look for honest work.

The survivors of the shakedown today are few. Rep. Chet Hollifield (D-Calif.) still pays his wife $12,500 for her services as receptionist, and the father of Rep. Ken Gray (D-Ill.) gets $20,000 in public monies to run his son's congressional office in West Frankfort, Ill. The brother of Rep. Spark Matsunaga (D-Hawaii) is worth $14,000 as "district director," and Patricia Young (R-N.D.) draws $14,000 as executive secretary to her husband, Sen. Milton Young.

Perhaps the juiciest of all is Congressman Melvin Price (D-Ill.) keeping his brother, Raymond, in the federal trough at $14,000. Price is chairman of the House Ethics Committee.

Whatever cream oozes from the udders of the public bourse for pimply-faced nephews of Congressmen and gum-chewing daughters-in-law of Senators, my sympathies are all with the harried lawmakers. Life isn't tough enough for a Republican Senator these days, but he's got to have a weedy son-in-law hanging around the office buffing his nails, making smart cracks about Watergate and asking to borrow the senatorial golf clubs for the afternoon.

How'd you like to have your daughter sitting at the desk opening all your mail before you arrived at the office each morning? Your nephew smirking around the House, pinching secretaries, lousing up your appointment book and asking for an advance on his salary. My sympathies are all with the solon.

And how about those hen-pecked senators whose wives are entrenched behind the desk as "executive secretaries"? I'll say executive. Opening your mail, answering all your telephone calls, eyeing visiting delegations of the Junior Women's Club, volunteering your services to talk to the WCTU — possibly volunteering a pint of your blood, or even a heart transplant.

None of us, of course, have (cough) secrets from our wives, but I think most Congressmen prefer the public eye to the private eye.

Labor has fruitful year in legislative session

SACRAMENTO — (UPI) — Ask virtually any labor lobbyist in the state Capitol and he is likely to tell you the 1973 legislative session was a mighty good year.

Organized labor got just about everything it sought from the Democratic-controlled Assembly and Senate.

But union leaders are not as confident their batting average will be as high with Gov. Ronald Reagan, especially on two major bills that would provide collective bargaining for teachers and unemployment insurance for farm workers.

The administration opposed both the teacher bill by Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, and the farmworker measure by Assemblyman Jack Fenton, D-Montebello.

The administration also objected to legislation by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, to extend collective bargaining to state and local government employees, including the right to strike.

The controversial bill cleared the Assembly with no votes to spare but stalled in a Senate committee when Moretti was unable to muster the three votes necessary for approval. The bill remains alive, however, and eligible for consideration next year.

Three bills to establish a farm labor relations law in California — opposed generally by the state AFL-CIO and Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers — never survived committees.

The labor committees of both houses plan to hold between sessions hearings in an attempt to draft compromise legislation aimed at satisfying both labor and growers.

Even as the legislature was killing the bills by Senate Republican leader Fred Marler Jr. of Redding, Sen. George Zenovich, D-Fresno, and Assemblyman Bob Wood, R-Greenfield, Chavez said he would support legislation requiring secret ballot elections in jurisdictional disputes between unions vying to represent agricultural workers.

Chavez, locked in a bitter and often violent struggle with the Teamsters to represent farm workers, said such a bill must have "proper safeguards to protect the rights of all farm workers."

The Assembly voted 56-12 and the Senate 21-15 to extend to 225,000 farm workers the same unemployment benefits now enjoyed by workers in other industries. The bill would provide jobless payments up to $75 a week for 26 weeks. Reagan vetoed similar legislation last year.

Highlights of labor-supported bills passed by the legislature:

DISABILITY INSURANCE — The maximum weekly benefit for a worker suffering an off-the-job injury would increase from $105 to $119. (AB 806 by Assemblyman Wadie Deddeh, D-Chula Vista).

UNEMPLOYMENT — The maximum payment for an unemployed worker would be raised from $75 a week to $90. Unemployment compensation is financed by employers while disability insurance is worker-financed. (AB 580, Deddeh).

EQUAL — Men would be included in the hours and working conditions standards now ordered by the Industrial Welfare Commission for women and minors. (AB 478 by Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., D-San Francisco).

SAFETY — A new state bureau would be created to investigate serious industrial accidents and prepare cases for prosecution of employers who violated safety standards. The bill also would make an employer subject to a felony conviction if his "gross negligence" resulted in a worker's death. (AB 150, Fenton).

TIPS — Employers would be prohibited from deducting more than 20-cents an hour from a worker's wage against tips received and require the employer to post a sign advising patrons the extent to which an employee is required to accept tips in lieu of wages. (AB 10 by Assemblyman Leroy F. Greene, D-Sacramento).

The bill extending collective bargaining rights to teachers would provide for secret ballot union representation elections and an "agency shop."

The measure wouldn't grant teachers the right to strike.

Opponents charged during debate that such legislation would make teacher strikes more frequent, but Moscone denied it. He said the bill would establish the machinery for collective "negotiations" and make strikes less likely.

Current law requires school boards to "meet and confer" with teacher organizations. The Moscone bill would require them to negotiate in "good faith."

The Moretti collective bargaining bill for state and local government employees, on the other hand, would allow public workers to strike as a last resort. Moretti contends his measure would establish collective bargaining procedures so that strikes would be less likely to occur than they are now.

Young Swedish king to continue mod course

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Bachelor King Carl XVI Gustaf, newly installed on one of the world's oldest and most stable thrones, will slowly modernize court life in coming years, court sources say.

The 27-year-old king will continue the modernization policy of his grandfather, King Gustaf VI Adolf, who died Sept. 15 at the age of 90.

Gustaf Adolf, a scholarly, mild-mannered man, won a unique popularity with his eight million subjects because of his natural and simple manners.

During his 23 years on the throne Gustaf Adolf began the modernization process which Carl Gustaf will continue, the sources said.

Carl Gustaf provided a hint Sept. 19 when he announced his royal motto—"for Sweden—with the times."

Speaking about his late grandfather in his first speech from the throne, the young king said: "My esteemed and beloved grandfather became a symbol for the modern monarchy. I am firmly resolved to follow his good example."

A constitutional reform, which will get a second reading in the Riksdag (parliament) next year, will strip Carl Gustaf of the few remaining prerogatives of royal power.

He will no longer act in a government crisis, he will not preside at the cabinet meeting and he will not be the supreme commander of the armed forces.

But no one thought of Carl Gustaf's future role as a purely figurehead monarch recently, when he was officially installed with all the pomp and circumstance that only an ancient royal house can muster.

The setting was the mighty 18th century royal palace in downtown Stockholm, where the late king's flag-draped casket rested in his private apartments.

Dressed in his admiral's uniform — he was promoted from lieutenant to admiral prior to the ceremonies—Carl Gustaf met Premier Olof Palme and his cabinet, all dressed in black tie.

Carl Gustaf told the cabinet "my royal name shall be Carl XVI Gustaf, my royal title shall be King of Sweden and my royal motto shall be 'for Sweden—with the times.'"

Rams' defense squelches Falcons

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES—You have to go back to the George Allen years when the Fearsome Foursome was the code name for the best defense in the National Football League.

Only then can you understand what the Rams did at the Coliseum Sunday afternoon.

Merlin Olsen, the 12-year All-Pro defensive tackle of the Rams, remembers very well what it was like. He was a member of the original Fearsome Foursome. Nothing they and he did then can compare to what he and the Rams accomplished 24 hours ago.

"You don't get a day like today without being awfully lucky. It's the best defensive game I've ever been a part of," Merlin said after the Rams buried the Atlanta Falcons, 31-0, to take the lead outright in the NFC's Western Division.

L.A. remains only one of four unbeaten NFL teams after the second week of the regular season. The Rams open the third week next Sunday in San Francisco.

The Rams stopped the Falcons of coach Norm Van Brocklin on 83 yards total offense, and two first downs.

The game was more than halfway into the third period before Art Malone picked up three yards and the first Falcon first down at the Atlanta 27-yard line. It was more than four minutes into the final period before the visitors completed a forward pass.

Van Brocklin, more cordial than usual with members of the media, summed it up best of all: "They played damn near a perfect football game. They flat-out whipped us in every phase. All we can do is try to hold our heads high until we meet again."

It was only a week ago that the Ducthman and his Falcons were riding cloud nine after humiliating the lowly New Orleans Saints, 62-7.

"The only way I can explain the contrast between last week's victory and our complete domination today is . . . that's athletics," Van Brocklin said.

It was a record for a Ram team. Never before had the club shutout an opponent in the Coliseum — this dating to the franchise's original move to the West Coast from Cleveland in 1946.

The fans — 64,528 of them — nestled in their seats in balmy 74 degree weather, loved it. They cheered and gave standing ovations to the defense. It had been awhile since the Rams had been treated thusly by the crowd.

But it wasn't a total defensive show. With Larry Bertelsen and Lawrence McCutcheon chopping out huge chunks of real estate, the Rams ran and ran and ran. And they passed some too.

McCutcheon clicked for 65 yards on 19 carries, and Bertelsen 52 on 16, to lead the way towards 209 yards rushing. Quarterback John Hadl added 142 yards and two touchdowns passing, completing 12 of 15.

So the Rams out-offended the Falcons 351-83, and out first downed them, 24-2. But it took awhile to get it going.

It was a deadlock through the first period and early into the second, when McCutcheon busted up the middle for 15 yards.

The dike had broken. Bertelsen and McCutcheon kept it moving on the ground, and Hadl hit Jackson for a key 16 yards and a first down at the Falcon 10.

Two plays later, Hadl hit Jackson in the end zone from the seven for a touchdown and a 7-0 lead following Ray's extra point.

Dave Elmendorf intercepted Atlanta quarterback Dick Shiner's pass and returned it 16 yards to the Falcon 32 to set up L.A.'s next score.

It was McCutcheon and Bertelsen driving the Rams again, down to the four, where Bertelsen plowed through the Falcons for a 14-0 advantage at halftime.

Ray boosted the margin to 17-0 eight minutes into the third quarter after the Rams used up that much on the clock with a ball-control drive that consumed 14 plays.

The Rams added icing in the final period, completing an 80-yard march which began late in the third quarter on Hadl's 29-yard touchdown pass to Jack Snow, who caught the ball on the seven and took it into the end zone.

Larry Smith completed the scoring late in the period on a two-yard run after the Rams took possession on downs at the Falcon 32. It required eight plays from there.

Dodgers beat Cincy after race is 'over'

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES — The Babes of Summer flexed their muscles one last time Sunday afternoon.

Unless a miracle takes place, it won't matter anything in the pennant race but the Los Angeles Dodgers gave their 50,007 Fan Appreciation Day fans something to cheer about as they closed the home portion of the 1973 campaign by downing the Cincinnati Reds, 6-4.

At least the Dodgers delayed Cincinnati's pennant celebration for at least the day.

Cincy returns to Riverfront Stadium tonight to open a three-game series against the last-place San Diego Padres needing only one victory in its six final games to wrap up the N. L. West flag.

Meanwhile, the Dodgers head for Atlanta to begin a similar series against the Braves followed by a closing two-game set in San Diego.

At least the Dodgers will be involved in plenty of excitement. The baseball world will be focused on Atlanta as Henry Aaron makes an all-out charge at Babe Ruth's career home run record. With five games remaining, Aaron needs two homers to tie Ruth's magic career total of 714.

The Dodgers also need only one more win to clinch second place in the final West standings.

Tommy John earned a career high 15th victory in stopping the Reds even though he couldn't finish the game as is his normal custom. The old master, Jim Brewer, came to the rescue for his 20th save.

The Dodgers gave John plenty to work with as Steve Garvey and Tom Paciorek belted a pair of two-run homers to knock out Cincinnati left-hander Fred Norman.

Garvey hit his third round tripper in two days with a shot in the second inning while Paciorek connected in the fourth in what proved to be the final margin.

As a team, the Dodgers have hit 106 home runs, their high since hitting 108 in 1966. With five more this season, L.A. could finish with its highest total since belting 140 in 1962.

Cincinnati also hit two home runs. Joe Morgan belted his 25th of the campaign in the fourth inning and pinch-hitter Andy Kosco connected in the eighth to start the Reds' last bid to get back into the game.

Pete Rose followed Kosco with a double and Morgan beat out a bunt single to finish John.

Even though the Dodgers were disappointed about the final month of the season including losing the first two games of the weekend series with the Reds, Alston thinks his team enjoyed a fine season with a 91-66 mark, the best since the 1966 pennant campaign.

"We've had two seasons," Alston said about the team which spent 80 days in first place. "When we had the pitching, our hitting fell off. Then the pitching faltered. We've won 91 games and that's a good showing when you consider we had an entire new infield and two new catchers."

It will be interesting what the Dodgers do during the winter to help their chances in 1974.

"Obviously, we need some pitching help and we still need a good power hitter, preferably righthanded," Alston said.

Paciorek may fill the bill or be going somewhere else.

"The Dodgers have to make some changes," he said. "They need a back-up infielder to spell (Bill) Russell and then seven guys who can play the outfield. That's ridiculous."

DODGER NOTES — Sunday's crowd put the final season at 2,136,192 . . . The Reds finished with an 11-7 edge over the Dodgers with Sunday's game snapping Cincy's string of seven consecutive victories over L.A. . . . Joe Ferguson won the Dat-sun contest as the Dodger of the Year.

ON HIS OWN

Los Angeles Ram quarterback John Hadl (21) could not find a receiver so he carried the ball himself and lost four yards. But Rams went on to win against Atlanta, 31-0.

Rosenbloom was right

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — Carroll Rosenbloom is taking the Rams' fast start in stride.

"I said at the beginning of the year that this football team would surprise a lot of people," he smiled. Rosenbloom was seated in his private booth on the second floor of the press box in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

Out on the field, the Ram owner's team was in the process of humiliating the Atlanta Falcons 31-0. The Falcons were coming off a 62-7 win over New Orleans in which they set 35 club offensive records.

The Rams had opened the season with an impressive 23-13 win over the Chiefs at Kansas City. But they had been largely unimpressive while moving through the exhibition season at a 2-3-1 pace although the two wins had come at the end of the pre-season play (over San Diego and San Francisco) suggesting that Rosenbloom, new coach Chuck Knox and his staff knew exactly what they were doing all the time.

"I was confident that we were building," he explained. "It takes time. We had many new players, a new coaching staff, and we play a very tough schedule. We couldn't move too fast."

Rosenbloom is known to be dedicated to the fans. "The first objectives are to see that the fans are entertained and that they are comfortable," Rosenbloom said.

Having apparently accomplished the first, he has embarked upon the second, which is modernizing and improving the Coliseum.

"We have to do something," he admitted. "This stadium was built 50 years ago. You look around the league and see what other cities have done. This is a city of eight million people and this is 1973."

Plans are to lower the field of play 18 feet and re-locate it for more central viewing, take out the running track and install new seats which would nearly double the present number of 25,000 seats between the goal posts and increase the overall capacity.

A new press box in a lower and more central location is also on the drawing board. But wanting the improvements, even though he is willing to pay for them himself, is not as easy as one might think.

"We don't own the Coliseum, remember," he reminded. "We have to get the approval of three organizations, the Coliseum Commission, the City and the County of Los Angeles."

Asked if he thought it could be done, Rosenbloom replied, "We're hopeful that it will."

Ryan nears strikeout mark in 20th victory

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) —The Ryan Express rolls on, toward one of baseball's glamor records.

In the California Angels' 15-7 win over Minnesota Sunday, Nolan Ryan got his 20th victory of the season. But a more eye-catching figure in the scorebook was the number 12 in the strikeout column.

It put the fireballing righthander just 15 strikeouts away from the major league season record of 382 set by Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers eight years ago.

Ryan was asked what meant more to him, win No. 20 or the big strikeout mark.

"I wanted the 20 wins," he said. "And now that I've got them the strikeout record would mean a lot more. But if I had to choose between the two I'd take the 20."

Ryan has averaged 10-plus strikeouts per game this year and with two starts to go he could pass Koufax with room to spare.

He wiped out a less revered Koufax mark in the Sunday slaughtering by striking out 10 or more batters in a game for the 22nd time this season.

Ryan probably could have had the win against the Twins pitching blindfolded. His teammates had a 5-0 lead by the time he got to the mound in the first inning and ran it up to 15-2 before Minnesota pounded him for five runs in the last inning.

Designated hitter Frank Robinson hit a 412-foot homer—his 29th this year—and added a double and a single to drive in five runs for the Angels.

Minnesota's Rod Carew calmly slashed Ryan's blazing pitches for four hits, including a double, raising his league leading batting average to .349.

Namath hurts shoulder

By United Press International

Sunday marked the end of the line for the Miami Dolphins' winning streak and possibly for Joe Namath's season.

The Oakland Raiders ended the World Champion Dolphins' dreams for another perfect season and a National Football League record for consecutive victories when 46-year-old George Blanda kicked four field goals to spark a 12-7 victory.

And unheralded linebacker Stan White of Baltimore, cruising in untouched, may have ended Namath's season when he slammed the New York Jets' star quarterback to the turf and inflicted a separated right shoulder. Al Woodall came on in relief of Namath to lift the Jets to a 34-10 romp over the Colts.

Blanda, a pro when some of his teammates were born and playing in his 300th game, spread his field goals over all four periods, kicking a 12-yarder in the first, a 46-yarder in the second, a 19-yarder in the third and a 10 yarder in the fourth. The Oakland defense completely blunted Miami's offense, the best in the NFL last season, and didn't allow a score until Bob Griese threw a 27-yard touchdown pass to Jim Mandich with 67 seconds left.

"This was the finest defensive effort I have seen in my seven years with the Raiders," said Coach John Madden. "We should have shut them out. We made up our mind to make no mistakes. The Dolphins win on other people's mistakes."

"It's been a long time since I talked to a losing team," said Miami Coach Don Shula, whose club did not lose a regulation game since the 1972 Super Bowl loss to Dallas. "They blew us out. They really took it to us. Whatever breaks they got, they forced themselves. Their linebackers were exceptional and they mixed their defenses well."

The defeat left the Dolphins tied with the Chicago Bears of 1933-34 and 1941-42 for most consecutive wins (18) including playoff games. The loss also ended the Dolphins' chance to tie the Bears' record of 17 straight regular season victories. Miami won 16 consecutive games before Sunday.

"We're just going to start all over again," said Shula. "Usually when we lose a game, we come back a better team."

The Jets, meanwhile, were awaiting word today on the extent of Namath's injury. If surgery is necessary, Namath will miss the entire season. If not, he will be out six to eight weeks.

"I saw him coming but it was too late then," Namath explained. "I didn't hurt it when he hit me, I hurt it when I hit the ground. I knew right away it was hurt, it was really stinging me. I'm sad about being hurt but the big thing is We came back big and won the game. Al did a terrific job in there and he'll continue to do a great job. He's developed into an excellent quarterback."

Revson wins race despite controversy

MOSPORT, Ont. (UPI)—American Peter Revson survived a counterclaim of victory and four hours of post-race deliberations Sunday to take the $25,000 top prize in the problem-plagued $220,000 Canadian Grand Prix at the countryside Mosport raceway.

The 200-mile race, delayed by an hour due to rain, ended in a mire of confusion with Revson being declared the unofficial winner.

Brazil's Emerson Fittipaldi, however, claimed that he, and not Revson, had won the race. Fittipaldi was placed second unofficially and England's Jackie Oliver third.

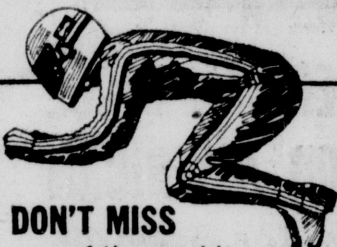

After four hours of deliberation and close re-checking of lap times, track officials finally confirmed the first three places in the race, making Revson the winner with an elapsed time of 1 hour 59 minutes 04.085 seconds. Fittipaldi was given a time of 1:59:36.817.

Revson, the 34-year-old Californian who drove a cream-colored McLaren, was first to admit after the race that he was "lucky."

He credited his win to the entry at about the 32nd lap, of the official pace car.

Officials placed France's Jean Pierre Beltoise in fourth place and Grand Prix points champion Jackie Stewart in fifth.

National League roundup

Met fans go nuts

By United Press International

Watching the New York Mets' relentless drive toward the National League's Eastern Division title recalls words written 2,000 years ago. "There were many brave men before Agamemnon," wrote Latin poet Horace. "But none had a poet to sing their praises."

But this is two centuries later and the city of New York is singing the praises of Mets like Wayne Garrett, Tug McGraw and Harry Parker. The Mets' drive to first place in the NL East has turned the Big City into a nut factory, just like 1969, and the question no longer is whether the Mets will win the division title but how many games it will take them to beat the American League representative in the World Series.

Crazy? Loony? Provincial? Sure, but that's the way it is as the Mets appear to be building up the same irresistible tidal wave that carried them to their "miracle victory" in the 1969 Series.

Garrett, McGraw and Parker played key roles Sunday as the Mets defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 5-2 and went into the final week of the season with a half-game lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Pirates gained a half game on the Mets — does it matter when New York has a 10th man watching over it up there in the sky? — when they swept the Montreal Expos, 6-3 and 7-4.

Garrett, batting .394 in September, hit a two-run, tie-breaking triple in the seventh inning. Parker pitched one-hit ball in middle inning relief to pick up his eighth victory against three losses. And then McGraw came on to shut out the Cardinals for the last three innings for his 23rd save. McGraw, ineffective in the early season going, has recorded four victories and 10 saves in his last 14 appearances, a perfect performance.

The Los Angeles Dodgers postponed the Cincinnati Reds' Western Division clinching with a 6-4 victory over them, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Chicago Cubs 9-7, the Atlanta Braves downed the Houston Astros 10-2, and the San Diego Padres outscored the San Francisco Giants 11-9, in other NL games.

Are the Mets on a trip of their own? Listen to these quotes: "When we scored five runs in the ninth inning to beat the Pirates in Pittsburgh last week we felt we're just bound to win," said Garrett. "It's like you fall in a stream and it carries you along...it's like sticking your finger in a socket and getting a shock," said McGraw.

"It's just too much... we can't lose," said Parker. Garrett delivered his game-winner with two out in the sixth when he tripled after a walk and a single by Ken Boswell. Parker held the Cardinals to one single in four innings and then McGraw closed it out before a sellout crowd of 51,926 at Shea Stadium.

Willie Stargell, leading candidate for the NL's MVP award, hit a three-run homer to win the first game for the Pirates and rookie Richie Zisk slammed a grand slammer in a six-run rally in the fifth inning of the nightcap as the pitcher-poor Pirates hung in there. Stargell's 87th extra-base hit of the season in the first game set a new club record.

Pitcher Ken Brett delivered a two-run eighth-inning single in a five-run eighth inning which carried the Phillies to their win over the Cubs; Roric Harrison won his 11th game for the Braves in a route over Houston and Fred Kendall's two-run single with two out and the bases filled in the ninth inning enabled the Padres to beat the Giants.

Both teams seem to agree that pitching will decide the American League playoff series between Oakland and Baltimore, and according to one of the key pitchers an even more important factor could be the money.

Whatever the outcome, about the only certain thing is that both clubs will have two weeks in which to think about it before opening their playoff at Baltimore on Oct. 6. The defending world champion A's clinched the Western Division title Sunday by whipping the Chicago White Sox 10-5, one day after the Orioles had certified their Eastern Division crown.

"Sure it's nice to win, but there is only one thing that's important to me and that's the money that we're going to get, win or lose," said Vida Blue, who gained his 20th victory in the A's clincher at Chicago.

"It's a business with me and I refuse to lie to all the little leaguers and try to con them. I don't love baseball, I like it. And to me baseball means money and that's all I care about."

Blue, who engaged in a well-publicized contract squabble with A's owner Charlie Finley last year, gave Oakland its third 20-game winner, following Catfish Hunter and Jim Holtzman.

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver, asked to analyze the club's 2-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers on Sunday, said, "I can sum it up for you in just a few words. There's only one subject to discuss and that's pitching. It should be a pitching series all the way."

"A lot of people don't think much of our bullpen but I love our bullpen and I respect theirs. Because of the strength of both bullpens there should be first line pitching all the way."

Boog Powell and Bobby Grich were other Orioles who pointed to the pitching factor.

"Both are similar teams and I look for low-scoring games," said Powell. "Pitching should be the dominant factor."

Grich added: "I look for lowscoring contests because both teams have good pitching and defense. I look for a key hit or key error to decide each game."

The losing pitcher in Oakland's clinching was Wilbur Wood, his 20th loss of the season against 24 victories. This made him the first major league pitcher since Walter Johnson in 1916 to both win and lose 20 games in the same season.

There were several other individual highlights on Sunday's schedule:

—Detroit righthander Joe Coleman allowed just one hit, a fifth-inning single by Bob Montgomery, in registering his 22nd victory as the Detroit Tigers beat the Boston Red Sox 3-0, for the 15th victory in 17 meetings with Boston.

—Ron Blomberg drove in four runs with a pair of homers and rookie Velez hit his first two major league

—Tom Poquette drove in his first major league runs with a two-run double in the second inning to start the Kansas City Royals off to a 7-4 victory over the Texas Rangers.

It's all SC, UCLA

By United Press International

Southern California has won twice and UCLA once and that just about sums up the Pacific 8 Conference's success to date in the 1973 season—three league victories and 13 losses.

When the Pac 8 schools won only one (USC) of eight opening week games, it was passed off as just one of those things. But what about the second week, when only USC and UCLA won while the other six schools fell again?

"I guess we might be going through one of those periods," observed Pac 8 Commissioner Wiles Hallock. "We've been a dominant league for so many years that the day was bound to come when we wouldn't be at the top any longer. Still, we've only played two weeks of the season and there is a lot of time to draw some more definite conclusions."

Southern California, relying on its defensive monsters for a second straight week, huffed and puffed its way to a 23-6 victory over a not so classy Georgia Tech team while UCLA, exploding out of its wishbone, routed Iowa, another not so strong team, 55-18.

From there on there was nothing but gloom for the Pac 8.

Of the losers, Washington made the best showing, bowing to Duke 23-21. It was a nice rebound for the Huskies, embarrassed a week ago by little Hawaii, 10-7.

Oregon dropped a 24-17 decision to Air Force and Washington State lost 20-9 to Arizona State. Oregon State was crushed 35-16 by Southern Methodist and California and Stanford were whipped soundly by Michigan and Illinois of the Big 10, respectively. The Cardinals, with another minus running game, lost 47-10 while Cal 27-7.

In the PCAA, San Jose State made it 3-0 by beating Long Beach State 24-6 on Friday night while Pacific dropped its first decision in three starts 49-14 to Wyoming and San Diego State, in its first start, overwhelmed Utah State 35-7. In other games, Hawaii defeated Fresno State 13-10 while Los Angeles State lost 35-14 to Fullerton State.

Washington held a 21-17 lead over Duke until Mark Johnson threw a 10 yard TD pass with 1:37 left. The Huskies' offense consisted of TD throws by Dennis Fitzpatrick (73 yards to Scott Phillips) and James Anderson (56 yards to Eddie King) and a one-yard smash by Greg Thornsburg.

WSU bottled up Arizona State's running game most of the way, then gave ground in the last period as the Sun Devils rallied. An 87-yard screen pass play from Danny White to Alonzo Emery and a 21-yard run by linebacker Bob Breunig after a fumble recovery gave ASU its winning points in the last quarter.

In games this week, it's Cal at Army, San Jose State at Stanford, Oklahoma at USC, UCLA at Michigan State, Utah at Oregon, Oregon State at BYU, Syracuse at Washington and Idaho at WSU in the Pac 8, and Fresno State at Montana State, Long Beach State at North Texas State, Los Angeles State at Cal Poly Pomona and Kent State at San Diego State in the PCAA.

No-shows still plaguing NFL sellout games

NEW YORK (UPI) —Half of the National Football League games played Sunday were sold out and televised locally under a new law signed 10 days ago by President Nixon. But the amount of fans who bought tickets and then did not show up at the gate fell sharply this week.

There were 15,346 "no-shows" at the six locally televised games—compared to just over 50,000 for opening games a week ago, when there were 10 games sold out and televised locally.

Weather was excellent at all six sold-out game sites Sunday.

Critics of the law, which prohibits blacking out professional games if the event is 100 per cent sold out 72 hours before it starts, have said spectators would prefer to stay home and watch local games on television, turning football into a "studio game."

They fear the immediate effect on parking and concession revenues and a possible long-term effect on ticket et sales as fans wait to see if the game will be televised rather than buy tickets in advance.

The New York Giants, playing their final game in Yankee Stadium, which is to be renovated, reported 5,161 ticketholders failed to show up for the sold-out game against Philadelphia. They'll play their remaining five home games this season at New Haven, Conn.

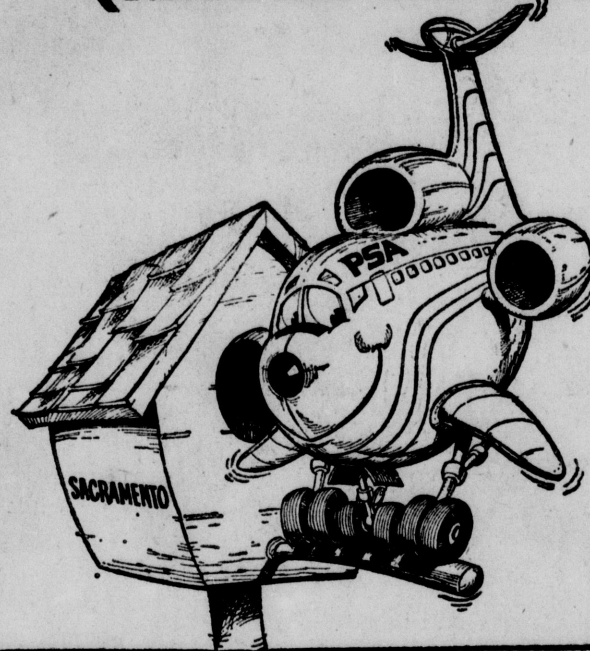

There were 4,053 absentees at Cincinnati for the game against Houston; 3,666 at Chicago for the game against Minnesota; 954 at Pittsburgh for the game against Cleveland; 772 at Green Bay for the game against Detroit and 740 at Denver for the game against San Francisco.

Experts claim hysteria hurting ecology's cause

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three environmental specialists say the greatest deterrent to progress in the war against pollution comes from zealots who make unscientific exaggerations and demand instant results.

"All sorts of dire predictions are being made by all sorts of people, but those most frightening with respect to health are being made by persons who are not physicians," said Dr. Daniel C. Braun, John A. Jurgiel and Dr. Paul Gross.

They said in an article in the September issue of Archives of Environmental Health that no reasonable person would suggest that pollution is not a serious problem. They said it demands all the intelligent, scientific and technical effort that can be mustered.

"But the point of emphasis is that many people have fallen into the sad practice of loose speech and fuzzy definitions in the whole area of environmental control," said the research team from the Industrial Health Foundation of Pittsburgh. "They cry havoc when what is really needed is merely nuisance abatement."

"The fact is that the far-out claims about air pollution are, at best, frightening citizens, especially parents, and at worse, are in a fair way leading to panic simply because of the lack of precise understanding of the actual health effects of contaminants in the air we breathe."

Braun, Jurgiel and Gross said exaggerated claims of environmental hazards sometimes result from ignorance of the significance of the relationship between doses of a contaminant and a body's response to it.

They said that pollution in high enough concentrations can be dangerous, sometimes causing serious illness and death. But on the other hand, they said the life span and general state of health of persons even in urban areas continues to improve "so the concentrations commonly found in urban areas must be less than disastrous."

The article said physicians should play a more important role in public information about pollution because the doctor is best able to understand the body's response to various levels of contaminants.

"Physicians know that the respiratory system is equipped with very efficient self-cleansing mechanisms, and can defend against and dispose of even abnormal amounts of foreign substances which are inhaled. One seldom hears or sees this fact referred to, however, in the talks or feature articles on air pollution."

The researchers also said the body has "marvelous" ways to counteract low doses of a wide variety of toxic substances with no harmful effects.

They said it is imperative that physicians maintain a scientific and professional approach to pollution and "calmly appraise all the facts relating to health, disease and ecology.

"Scientific research is a slow, methodical process," and no amount of hysteria, government funding or legislation will hasten resolution of the problems of physiological reactions."

Women

Show features actress

A first lady of the stage, screen and television who is also a noted civic leader, Jane Wyatt, will serve as commentator for the 38th annual garden party fashion show of the Assistance League of Pomona Valley.

Scheduled Oct. 13 in the gardens of Scripps College, Claremont, the "Saturday Matinee" starts at 1 p.m. and stars the fashions of noted couturier-designer Dan Werle.

The traditional fall party benefits the league's philanthropic projects, including the Speech and Hearing Center in Pomona.

Miss Wyatt's credits include numerous plays in New York and summer stock, three dozen major motion pictures, 207 filmed episodes of "Father Knows Best" and countless guest star TV appearances.

She is the possessor of three Emmys from the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences for "best actress in a continuing series"

St. Helena nuptials unite local couple

Wedding vows were recited by Miss Rebecca Elizabeth Ruprecht of Montclair and Dr. Stephen Dow Proffitt of Claremont in an afternoon nuptial ceremony at the Meadowood Suburban Club in St. Helena.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Ruprecht Sr. of Hawthorne, Nev., and the groom is the son of Mrs. Muriel Proffitt of Oakland.

The former Miss Ruprecht wore a gown of silk fashioned with a high neck with Belgium lace at the waistline and cuffs. A picture hat held her two-tier veil of French illusion.

Purely Personal

Marjorie Diane Grays, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bradford of Pomona, is among 129 young women recently pledged to seven national sororities at the University of Puget Sound, Tacoma, Wash.

Miss Grays, a graduate of Garey High School, is a member of Gamma Phi Beta Sorority.

earned during the six years of the "Father Knows Best" series with Robert Young.

Among her favorite movie roles and the stars with whom she appeared were "Lost Horizons" with Ronald Colman, "None But the Lonely Heart" with Gary Grant, "Gentleman's Agreement" with Gregory Peck, "Pittfall" with Raymond Burr and "Task Force" with Gary Cooper.

Professionally, she has served as governor, secretary and a trustee of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

In private life, she is married to Edgar B. Ward, the mother of two grown sons and a grandmother of three. She is a member of the UCLA Art Council and the first woman member of the Board of Trustees for the National Foundation-March of Dimes.

Tickets for the garden party may be obtained by calling 622-2220, 593-5201 or at the door.

Birthdays to be marked at luncheon

Members of the Women's Community Club of Pomona Valley who celebrate their birthdays in August and September will be honored at a noon luncheon Wednesday at the clubhouse, 172 W. Monterey St.

Hostesses will be Mmes. Dan Reilly, Edith Eisenhauer, Mary Gover and Fritzie Baer.

Celebrating August Birthdays will be Mmes. H. L. Anderson, Ford Brown, Blancia Ferrell, Fern Fletcher, Clarence Gardner, G. M. Pierce, Beulah Root, Stanley Sparks, Lena Waid, L. R. Hughes, Edward Cline, Mary Leddy, R. Hedeman and Merrill Fraley.

September honorees are Mmes. Matilda Allen, J. S. Eshelman, Edward Greenlee, Eva Meyers, Wallace Siedschlag, Jasper Wright, Milton Hall and D. Burrows.

Andersons celebrate anniversary

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Anderson of Laguna Niguel was celebrated recently at the Crown House.

Attending the dinner honoring the couple who resided in Pomona for 12 years were their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Anderson of Laguna Niguel, eight of their nine grandchildren and three of their four great-grandchildren.

The Andersons were married in Detroit and lived in Plymouth, Mich., from 1933 until 1946 when they came to California. They have resided in Laguna Niguel one year, moving from Pomona where they managed a mobile home park.

Mr. Anderson has been active in the American Legion since he was in France during World War I.

Secretaries schedule orientation

The Pomona Chapter of National Secretaries Association, Inc., will meet Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Fiesta Room of Griswold's Inn, Claremont.

The evening's program will be a NSA orientation program by guest speakers.

Reservations are due today with Mrs. Luella Schroeder, 622-2321. Secretaries interested in joining NSA are invited to call Mrs. Barbara Condit at 626-8511, extension 2255.

Next year, they'll be past their prime.

They'll be seven.

A full year removed from the prime period for being introduced to music.

And too old to take part in the only program especially developed for bringing children to music during the critical years of four to six, the Yamaha Music School.

Leading educators agree on the need for music training for children when they're most open to learning and feeling the many elements of music.

And many of those educators enthusiastically endorse the Yamaha Music School, which has successfully introduced over a million-and-a-half four to six-year-olds to music.

The school doesn't start a child out on a particular instrument.

Its goal is not only performance, but also understanding and appreciation of music.

It focuses on ear training, the most valuable basic training in music (and the one indispensable course required by master teachers, music conservatories, conductors, etc.).

This year's program is about to begin, and now's the perfect time to enroll.

Life in a wheelchair: it's bumpier than it appears

By PAUL HILL
P-B Staff Writer

"I think we're helping one another by being here" — Richard Ream, a patient at Casa Colina Hospital

POMONA — "Everything You Wanted to Know About Wheelchair Living Under 65—But Were Afraid to Ask" is not the title of a potential best-selling book.

It is, however, an example of people helping people.

Once a month in the Common Room at Casa Colina Hospital, persons confined to wheelchairs and, in some cases, their relatives meet informally to discuss problems and potentials of handicapped individuals.

Available support funds, sex, automobile driving problems and vocational rehabilitation are just some of the subjects touched upon. Sessions also include complaints or hangups a member of the group desires to discuss.

Those in attendance also have the opportunity to hear guest speakers who can give them information which may aid in combating any problems they might encounter.

"It's a place a person can come and ask a question and hopefully get an answer," said Sally Grove, a 21-year-old quadriplegic college student, who is the discussion chairman.

"The reason I wanted to organize a meeting like this is strictly for informational purposes," she said. "The need as I saw it in my own life was just a place where you could go and ask questions."

Miss Grove, who was paralyzed in an accident at a high school swimming meet three years ago, is assisted by Mrs. Kay Moore, a social worker, and Mrs. Lenore Hersh, hospital recreation therapist.

Like Miss Grove, they too agree that the program fulfills a need for those participating.

"I think there is a need to just get together and discuss what life is like in a wheelchair," said Mrs. Moore. "There's nothing that able-bodied people can really say on behalf of people in a wheelchair because we are not in a wheelchair."

"We have no idea of the kinds of problems they are going to be facing on the outside. We can more or less feel some of the problems they are facing as in-patients, but once they are out, we can't."

Said Mrs. Hersh, "It's almost a two-way street. They are helping someone new who is disabled, plus they are helping themselves. Rehabilitation does not stop once a patient is discharged from a hospital."

About 20 persons were gathered at a recent meeting.

They ranged in age from the early 20s to the middle 50s. One man has been in a wheelchair for almost 40 years, paralyzed since birth. Another has been without the use of his legs for less than a year.

Some of the handicapped individuals—like Miss Grove and James McAlpin of Chino—have returned to the outside to resume their careers. Others are still undergoing rehabilitation in the hospital.

At the outset of the meeting, each person gave his reason for being in attendance.

"I think we are helping one another by being here," said Richard Ream.

"I've been trying for 20 years to get an organization like this started," said Tom Cummins.

"I just want to obtain more information," responded Sally Potter.

Even Casa Colina's managing director, able-bodied Dale Eazell, was there. "I'm here to learn," he said.

A pharmacist talked to the group about Medi-Cal benefits, how the program works, and the relationship between pharmacists and disabled persons.

"Be frank with your pharmacists, and let them be frank with you," he urged. "You must know your pharmacist and he must know you. If we (pharmacists) don't know how to better serve you, we won't know how to help you."

Following the hour-long talk, the group exchanged personal ideas and experiences of wheelchair living.

One elderly gentleman, whose wife recently was confined to a wheelchair, asked how he could best help her.

"Let her do things for herself if she is capable of doing them," McAlpin responded. "Let her do as much for herself as possible."

WHEELCHAIR LIVING

"Everything You Wanted to Know About Wheelchair Living Under 65—But Were Afraid to Ask" is the topic of a study series at Casa Colina Hospital. Among the participants are Chuck Jackson and Sally Grove. Miss Grove, a 21-year-old quadriplegic college student, serves as the discussion chairman.

There was total agreement amongst the group. Normal-bodied people, they said, have a natural inclination to "jump up and help" because they think that the handicapped cannot take care of themselves.

"I tell people I need the arm exercise when they ask me if I need a push," Cummins said.

Special seating at sporting and cultural events for persons confined to wheelchairs was another topic discussed. Some said that sections set aside for wheelchairs were often poorly located and limited.

"There is a special section at the Coliseum (in Los Angeles) for persons in wheelchairs," said Cummins. "But there are no seats for the wives, husbands, boy friends or girl friends of the people in the chairs."

"These people evidently don't think we can attract boy friends or girl friends."

But McAlpin cautioned against any bitterness on the part of the group. "People are not malicious. They just don't understand our problems," he said.

And that is what "Everything You Wanted to Know About Wheelchair Living Under 65" is about. Don't be afraid to ask.

Literature's light dimmed by prison's necessities

Four months ago I ordered four books from the New American Library, Inc., in New York.

When these books hadn't arrived nine weeks after they were ordered, I wrote to the New York address only to have my letter returned by the post office.

It was by luck that I stumbled on a New Jersey address in an advertisement in a newly-released book. When I wrote to the company at that address, I received a notice that I hadn't allowed time enough for delivery. I wrote again and the reply was that I had not sent enough information.

I would appreciate it if you would contact the company and ask that I either receive the books or $4.60, the price of purchase.

If it were not for organizations like yours, people in state prisons, like myself, would have no way to straighten out mail order problems.—J.S., Chino.

New American Library wrote back that the books were being shipped even though the company has no record of your original order. The firm claims that you were asked to send a copy of your canceled check but did not do so.

"We have been experiencing difficulty with prisons accepting book orders for prisoners," the firm wrote. "For some reason, most of those orders are returned."

After he learned you are at the California Institution for Men as a guidance center resident, Earl Muff in the public relations office stated that inmates are in the center an average of eight to 12 weeks. It is a reception and diagnostic division of the institution.

For storage and transportation reasons, guidance center residents are allowed only a limited number of personal possessions. That is why book orders may be returned to the publisher by the center and the prisoner so notified.

If you have moved to a permanent location when the books arrive at the guidance center, they will be forwarded. Muff believes that most books and periodicals are acceptable to most institutions although law requires that each issue of a publication be cleared as to content.

The letter in your column Sept. 10 concerning the loss of a sick puppy saddened my heart and troubled my mind.

It seems to me that the problem we have is not with animals but, as usual, with people.

If we truly care about the well-being of not only this puppy but all present and future generations of our pets, we have to face this fact — a pet, no matter how dear to us or how much a part of the family it may be, is not a necessity, but a luxury.

To ask the public to chip in to help you pay for this luxury, which is what you are doing when you ask for discount "welfare"-style animal clinics, is unfair and illogical.

Veterinarians do care about animals and find it hard to turn their backs on a sick or injured pet, even if the financial situation seems precarious. But they are turning their backs more and more because they must. They can't repossess your dog when you don't pay but they can get their equipment repossessed if they don't pay.—K.T., Pomona

The Sept. 10 letter came from two Pomona Valley residents who reported a friend lost a sick puppy because she couldn't afford treatment for the dog.

They expressed a hope for some kind of free or low payment animal care in this community.

Bruce Richards, executive director of the Humane Society of Pomona Valley, Inc., said the society's board of directors is discussing the possibility of an emergency animal clinic.

Such a clinic would be undertaken, he said, only if veterinarians agree, because they already give service to the Humane Society that is worth thousands of dollars yearly.

MSAC prof to represent valley educators at meet

Pomona Valley educators will be represented at Phi Delta Kappa's 34th biennial council meeting in Houston, Tex., Oct. 18-21, by Berge Minasian, president of the Mt. San Antonio College Field Chapter.

Dr. John Cook, former assistant personnel director in the Pomona Unified School District and now with the Montebello district, will attend as alternate delegate.

Dr. Cook is immediate past president of the MSAC field chapter.

Test of news memory today inside the P-B

At a recent press conference this man said the administration was considering a possible tax increase to control inflation.

He is a high presidential adviser and a former secretary of defense.

Do you know who he is?

Turn to the News Quiz, appearing today on A-5. You'll find him in the newsmagazine section.

While you're at it, give the other quiz features a try. You'll find all of them challenging and entertaining.

The News Quiz is published by the Progress-Bulletin as part of its current events programs for schools in this area.

Answers to today's questions may be found on A-6 in the Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association advertisement.

Prize science student sought

POMONA — A search for the area's most outstanding high school science student now is being conducted by the Southern California Edison Co.

V. F. Martin, district manager, said the top student will be selected to attend the 14th annual National Youth Conference on Science and the Environment which will be held Nov. 8-10 in Chicago, Ill.

Edison, conference sponsor, has invited each public, private and parochial high school in its service territory to nominate one student as a possible candidate.

"From these nominations, six students — one from each of the company's six geographic divisions — will be selected to attend the science seminar," Martin said.

The student's teacher also will be invited.

Banker attends graduate class

POMONA — Robert E. Liles, a vice president and loan origination officer at Pomona First Federal's head office, attended the first year of the Graduate School of Savings and Loan at Indiana University in Bloomington.

Delegates from 413 chapters are expected to adopt positions on nine major issues identified by the fraternity and resolve the question of the admission of women.

The council also will consider proposed amendments to the constitution, elect officers for the coming biennium and adopt the organization's first $2 million budget.

Phi Delta Kappa is an international professional fraternity for men in education.

MSAC field chapter officers for 1973-74 serving with Minasian are Cecil J. Soden Jr., vice president; Burdett L. Shearer, second vice president; James G. E. Ervin, secretary-treasurer; C. Joseph Barfield, vice president (projects); Ralph Taylor, historian; James E. Johnson, board member; and Bruce Center, 800 S. Garey Ave.

Insurance firm names manager

POMONA — Keith W. Woodard is new staff manager of the National Life and Accident Insurance Co., 4771 E. Holt Blvd.

I. J. Joyce is manager. Woodard began his career as an agent in 1968. He has won company and industry production honors and awards.

Prior to his present promotion, he was an agent in the Dayton North, Ohio, district office.

Arraignment due on arson charge

POMONA — A 54-year-old Pomona man, arrested Friday night after a fire in his apartment, was expected to be arraigned on arson charges today in Pomona Municipal Court.

The suspect, John Liekus, 247 S. Rebecca St., was booked on suspicion of arson and attempted arson after a mattress was discovered burning in his apartment. Police and fire department officials said the fire was discovered by a neighbor and there were indications of numerous attempts to start a fire in the apartment.

Arson suspected in carport fire

POMONA — Arson is suspected in a fire Sunday that caused $5,000 damage to a carport located at 3114 N. Garey Ave.

The carport served four apartment units which are owned by E. J. K. Management Co., of Van Nuys. No cars were parked in the carport at the time of the fire.

The fire apparently started in the second stall of the four-car carport in trash and old furniture. The fire is under arson investigation.

Fair's last week to feature arts, crafts

POMONA — Demonstrations in various arts and crafts, which have attracted thousands to the 1973 Los Angeles County Fair, will continue this week during the last seven days of the huge exposition.

Today is Senior Citizens Day, and Tuesday several hundred will be on hand for the annual milk drinking contest in the livestock area.

Attendance was down during the past weekend compared to the record setting pace of the 1972 exposition.

Attendants counted 138,848 at the fair Saturday, which was below the attendance figure of 162,087 on a similar Saturday in 1972.

On Sunday, 132,779 persons went through the turnstiles. A total of 124,473 attended the 1972 fair on the second Sunday.

What's going on around here . . .

Insurance firm names manager

Baton and drum corps accepting young members

POMONA — Girls 5 to 15 and boys 10 to 15 are being sought by The Comets, a baton group and drum corps.

Those interested in joining may call Linda Tom afternoons and evenings at 629-8456 or LaRhonda Daughtery at 629-8734.

The group is sponsored by Pomona VFW Post 2019. Drums are provided. Beginning or advanced drummers will be accepted. Nominal fees are charged for drum and baton twirling instructions.

Sierra Club chapter meets

CLAREMONT — The Mt. Baldy Group Chapter of the Sierra Club will hold a meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Seaver Laboratory on the campus of Pomona College.

John Robinson will be the speaker. His topic will be the "Mines of the San Gabriel." The public is invited.

Enrollment tops board's agenda

POMONA — A report on enrollment in Pomona schools will be submitted at the school board meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the District Education Center, 800 S. Garey Ave.

A state textbook entitled "Human Sexuality" will be discussed.

Board members will be asked to approve the hiring of coaches for the 1973-74 year as well as several new teachers, substitute teachers and adult school instructors.

All school board meetings are open to the public.

An executive session, usually held following a board meeting, is closed to the public and the press.

PVCH will be host to nurse association

POMONA — Pomona Valley Community Hospital will host the American College of Obstetrics-Gynecology Nurses Association at a luncheon meeting on Wednesday at 12:30 p.m.

The Inland Area branch of the association will hear a talk on chemical genetics by Dr. Hayato Kihara of Claremont, chief research chemist at Pacific State Hospital in Pomona.

Putting the blame on Billy Graham

Watergate has a way of touching every aspect of American life. Church, college and community affairs that turn sour or reveal bad decisions are called "mini Watergates." Individuals and groups tagged with failure are labeled "plumbers." Even phrases and sentences such as "one thing perfectly clear" and "at that point in time" must be linked with double meanings or not used at all.

The religious community has churned the Watergate episode to a holy froth. Liberals are blaming White House establishment religious leaders, such as Billy Graham, for the morality that made Watergate possible. Graham, writing in the New York Times, argued that the spiritual and moral collapse of the whole country—especially the permissiveness of the Sixties—was the source of the political plotting.

James A. Michener, responding to Graham's statement in the same newspaper, exploded with: "He has it backwards. The men who engineered Watergate were the least permissive in America. They sat Sunday mornings in the White House and listened to Billy Graham himself preach consoling approval of the status quo. He was one of the few men in America who could have influenced the course of Watergate, and he did nothing about it."

The difficulty here is our short memory and limited information concerning the workings of the White House. In fact, the Sunday services were the dream of the Secret Service who wanted the President out of sanctuary target areas. This suited Mr. Nixon for his religious persuasions were vague and most personal. Most of the time he is at San Clemente or Florida—White House services, when held, were for senior members of the administration and family. Graham, Dr. Peale and others were on the invitational list of preachers.

The conservative religious theme has been the close one to our most recent presidents. And critics have been eager to lay the blame on Billy Graham for his role as adviser and companion to Johnson and Nixon (although he was closest to Eisenhower). Yet many who sit in judgment on the evangelist and his role do not have the back-stage perspective and their memories are failing on even public accounts.

Consider the war in Vietnam. Graham did give tacit approval to the conflict by supporting the Johnson-Nixon participation—and certainly, the bombing. Yet it was Billy Graham who exerted every influence to place Sen. Mark Hatfield for vice-president on the Nixon slate in 1968—the leading Republican critic of Asian policy!

Some churchmen have raged against Graham for his silence during the period of savage bombing when the peace negotiations seemed in a state of collapse late last year. Yet insiders know (and it may be one day revealed in his autobiography) that Dr. Graham privately put intense pressure for a settlement at the highest levels of government.

Graham cannot be blamed for Watergate, for the follies of the Nixon-Agnew team nor the failures of the next president. His conservative theology will always create debate among Christians, but history will probably be most generous to the world's most famous evangelist.

The new bumpers somewhat lacking

Those give-and-take bumpers required by federal standards beginning with 1973 cars are resisting damage, but not to the extent hoped for.

That is the conclusion of a study—the first to monitor the effects of safety and damageability standards on accident costs—submitted to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The study by State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co., the nation's largest car insurer, was based on a three-month compilation and comparison of some 1,600 claims involving groups of 1973 and 1972 models. It found that the '73s were less frequently damaged in front and rear collisions, but there was very little reduction in the average repair costs of these collisions.

Principal findings of the study: Compared to 1972 models, 1973 models had fewer cases of front and rear damage. Replacement frequencies of certain major components, including front and rear face bars and grilles, were significantly lower for the 1973 models. Nevertheless, average repair costs were about the same for the two years: $290 for 1973 models vs. $295 for '72s.

One reason claims costs have not decreased is the more complex and costly design of bumper systems to meet federal standards. Prices for virtually all 1973 bumper replacement components increased over 1972 prices—in one case from $138.10 to $306.65 for a complete front bumper.

According to Dr. Wayne W. Sorenson, head of State Farm's research department, a new and more demanding bumper standard being considered by the Department of Transportation promises more savings, as well as safety, to the American motorist.

This proposed standard would prevent damage to any part of the car in low-speed crashes. The present standard applies only to safety-related parts, such as lights, brakes and other systems necessary for safe operation of the vehicle.

U.S. hands clean in Chile coup

WASHINGTON — We have been deluged with inquiries from all over the world about possible U. S. involvement in the overthrow of President Salvador Allende in Chile.

Because we exposed the ITT-CIA plot to block Allende from assuming power in 1970, newspapers in many countries have asked us whether the CIA was also behind the military coup which left Allende dead in the presidential palace last week.

We have checked carefully with the best sources available to us in the White House, State Department, Pentagon and CIA. Here's what we have found:

For the past few months, Washington has been bombarded with intelligence reports from Chile warning of "discontent and plotting in the military services." Only the day before the takeover, a Chilean military officer informed the U. S. embassy in Santiago that a coup was imminent.

No evidence

The warning, however, wasn't treated as any more significant than dozens of similar reports that have been passed on to Washington recently. We could find no evidence that Washington knew in advance what the Chilean generals were planning.

The sudden arrival in Washington of Nathaniel Davis, the U. S. ambassador to Chile, on the weekend before the takeover has been cited as evidence that the United States must have had some inkling of the plot. On the contrary, we have learned that Davis chose that weekend for his visit because he expected it to be comparatively calm in Santiago.

He was summoned to Washington by Henry Kissinger who, in anticipation of his confirmation as secretary of state, wanted to assess a few top diplomats for possible Washington assignments. Because of the volatile situation in Chile, Kissinger specified that Davis should choose the most quiet time to come to Washington.

Davis, of course, knew about the stirrings within the Chilean armed forces. But he had emphasized in his secret cables that "events move slowly in Chile, or perhaps better said, Chileans have great ability to rush to the brink, embrace each other and back off."

Department matters

When Davis met with Kissinger, according to our sources, they spent no more than five or 10 minutes reviewing the Chilean situation. Most of their discussion was devoted to internal State Department matters.

It is possible that the CIA may have been involved in some minor project against Allende. But the CIA is forbidden to intervene in any major foreign operation without the specific approval of the hush-hush Forty Committee, which passes on undercover operations. Our sources, who have access to the secret deliberations of the Forty Committee, assure us that no project was approved to depose Allende.

The Pentagon, meanwhile, has been furnishing arms to the Chilean military establishment. After Allende came to power, the White House considered cutting off military aid to Chile. The decision was made to continue arms shipments because the Chilean generals were known to be anti-Allende.

For example, $12.4 million worth of credits were granted to the Chilean armed forces last year for the purchase of U.S. military supplies and the training of Chilean officers. The Pentagon had no direct part, however, in the plot against Allende.

DEADLY ENEMIES: The Watergate developments have taken an ironic twist which has left the two ringleaders, G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, deadly enemies.

Liddy is a fanatic who offered to submit to being gunned down in the streets, Mafia-style, for his failure at Watergate. When his startled superiors declined to arrange his execution, he went to prison, lips grimly sealed.

Hunt is a romantic who played the spy role until the plot turned out not to have a storybook ending. He was one of the first to break and to throw himself upon the mercy of the prosecutors. When he told the other Watergate conspirators that he had broken his secrecy oath, according to prison sources, Liddy hollered for a guard. "Keep me away from him," Liddy growled, referring to Hunt, "or I'll kill him!"

That was the last time Liddy and Hunt have spoken to one another.

Now Hunt appears to be the key government witness against the Cubans he recruited to do his dirty work.

His flair for the dramatic gave him a charismatic sway over the Cubans.

Gossip for today

Throughout our nation's nearly 200 turbulent years there have been countless arguments, investigations and hearings in connection with the strange ways government officials were spending money on the pretext that it was being done in the interest of national security. So, if it is any consolation, just chalk up what is happening today as only another instance of history repeating itself. Take a controversy that was raging in 1892 as evidence of such a contention. That was the year high government officials in this country were being taken to task because they were using public funds to foot the expense bills in connection with keeping 300 cats in department buildings in Washington, D.C., and New York City. When questioned as to whether such expenditures were legal, those officials quickly justified the action on the grounds that the cats were keeping the rats from destroying secret and classified information, the loss of which could undermine the American government.—What's more, they got away with that explanation. In those days the old national security play was something the American public took seriously.

INSIDE REPORT

Nixon trade pledge doomed

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — Under the steady battering of headlines now dramatizing the courageous struggle for civil rights by intellectual dissidents in the Soviet Union, President Nixon's pledge to give the Russians equality with other nations in trading with the U.S. is at least temporarily doomed.

The root cause of the trouble far antedates the decision by Russian author and Nobel prize-winner Alexander Solzhenitsyn and other Russian intellectuals to go public with their deeply emotional grievance against the Kremlin.

The root cause is the highly successful campaign of Democratic Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, backed by the powerful American-Jewish community, to use the issue of trade equality as a club to force Moscow to permit totally free emigration of Soviet Jews to Israel.

But that campaign by Jackson and Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, backed by a clear majority in both the House and Senate, has now been galvanized by the shrewdly publicized civil rights struggle of Solzhenitsyn, nuclear physicist Andrei D. Sakharov, and other brave civil libertarians centered in Moscow.

The net result as of today: something close to panic in the Nixon White House. The President's cherished policy of detente with the Soviet Union, symbolized by his pledge to give Moscow both U.S. credits and most-favored-nation trade treatment, now confronts a threat that no one in the White House thought possible when the pledge was made at the Moscow summit 16 months ago.

Rescue down the drain

One tentative rescue operation went down the drain this week when Secretary of State Henry Kissinger cancelled a trip to the Ways and Means Committee intended to reverse the disastrous tide and convert enough members to defeat the Jackson amendment.

A major reason Kissinger's appearance was postponed was that a telephone talk between Mills, recovering from his back operation down in Arkansas, and Rep. Al Ullman of Oregon, acting committee chairman, decreed its futility. Mills flatly declined to change his position on the Jackson amendment (which, with liberal Democrat Rep. Charles A. Vanik of Ohio, he is sponsoring in the House).

Mills refused to bow to frenzied White House requests that he shift to a less rigid amendment sponsored by Rep. James C. Corman, a Democrat, and Rep. Jerry L. Pettis, a Republican, both of California. That amendment would give the President much-needed flexibility, while preserving his power to use the most-favored-nation issue as a continuing device to pressure Moscow.

Administration strategists are now hoping Kissinger will exude enough persuasive charm on the committee within the next two weeks to do one of two things: first, get committee approval of the most-favored-nation proviso for Moscow with no strings attached; or, second, persuade the committee to pass the Corman-Pettis compromise.

Under this strategy, the vote on the most-favored-nation clause (Title Five in the highly important trade bill) would be postponed until just before the bill is cleared by the committee and ready for action in the House.

Protecting Nixon's option

That way, administration strategists hold, the momentum of a favorable vote in committee might carry the bill through the House without the Mills-Vanik amendment. Then, when the Senate version of the bill—sure to contain the original Jackson amendment—is sent to a Senate-House conference early next year, a compromise would emerge protecting the President's option to keep his pledge to Leonid Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist party leader.

All that now looks like wishful thinking, in spades. The strenuous efforts by Mr. Nixon, by Kissinger, himself Jewish, and by other high administration aides to choke off the rabid support for the Jackson amendment in the American-Jewish community—"wherever there is a synagogue," as one Jewish leader told us—has failed.

Making that failure worse are the deeply emotional civil rights stories from Moscow and the sudden attack on liberal Democratic leaders here by Soviet intellectuals for refusing to face the facts about civil rights in the Soviet Union.

Deeper implications lie ahead, particularly on how the Kremlin will react when it fails to get delivery on the Nixon pledge. Also deeply involved is American big business, which likes the smell of profits from vastly greater trade with Russia. But in its present mood, those considerations—and perhaps even the full bloom of detente itself—seem unimportant to this Congress.

Rewards waiting for two drug tips

ONTARIO — We Turn in Pushers, Inc. (We T.I.P.) has authorized payment of rewards to two area informants whose information recently led to the confiscation of more than $150,000 in illegal heroin.

A We T.I.P. spokesman said police, using some of the information supplied by the two informants in late 1972, arrested six persons involved in illegal heroin trafficking in the West End area, two of whom were convicted of drug violations in West Valley Superior Court.

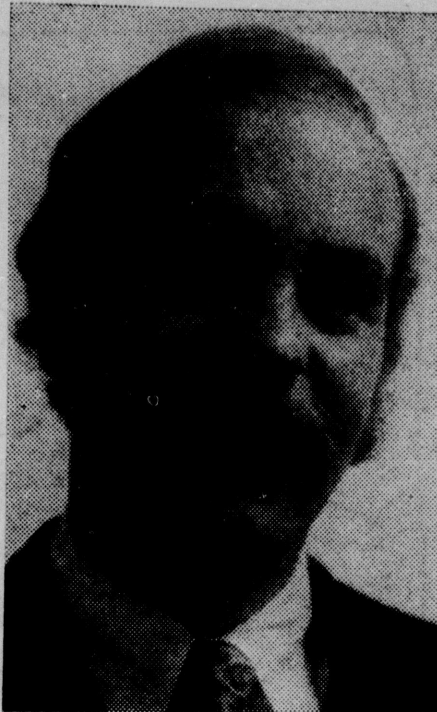

In addition to the six arrests in two police investigations, officers seized 11 ounces of pure Mexican heroin, along with 24 packets of cut heroin with a total street value of $150,240.

Tipsters designated as GB #54 and GB 721 are authorized to go to their prearranged drop points and pick up their rewards.

Since We T.I.P. opened its local and statewide T.I.P. phone numbers (714-983-9611 and 800-472-7785) 18 months ago, police agencies using We T.I.P. information on suspected drug pushers, have arrested 353 persons, 70 of whom have been convicted of various drug offenses. Nearly 4,000 tips on suspected drug pushers have been called in to We T.I.P. by anonymous informants.

Information from the anonymous informants is forwarded from We T.I.P. to the police agencies involved, who may use the data to launch an investigation. The anonymous informants are eligible for a reward from $100 to $500 if the suspected drug pusher is arrested and convicted.

Official at Boys Republic ending his 'temporary job'

By MAE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — It all began as a temporary job, but now after 19 years, Ed Keating will retire and perhaps write a book about the memories, good and bad, of work with troubled boys.

Keating joined the staff of Boys Republic, the school-farm community for delinquent boys located in Chino, in mid-1954 as a night supervisor. He took the job after a position in civil defense in Pomona fizzled out from lack of funds.

"We ran out of money and the program was cut. I swore that I would not return to boys' work again. It was too frustrating. I took the Boys Republic job because I thought it would be only three or four months until the other job was refunded, but it didn't happen that way. So I just stayed on with Boys Republic," said Keating before his retirement.

Director in 1961

The tall, husky man opened the school's residence in Pomona at 733 N. Garey Ave. in January 1961 as director. The residence was conceptualized as an attempt "to give the kids a chance to get ready for release. It was designed as group therapy to help them solve their problems, motivate them through education in high school and try to get them ready for college," said Keating.

Now at age 66 and looking at least 10 years younger, Keating prepares to leave after seeing approximately 225 boys go through the residence. Most have succeeded, some have not, but all hold Keating somewhere in their memories of youth, troubled times and the efforts to make it.

Keating's occupational life began with the recreation department under the Work Projects Administration in San Jose. From there, he joined the staff of Lytton School in Healdsburg, a coeducational facility that served a similar purpose as that of Boys Republic. After 18 months there, World War II broke out and Keating became a civilian employee in the transportation division of the War Department in San Francisco.

The war ended in August 1945 and about a year later, he left the post of principal administrative assistant and rejoined the Lytton staff. He put in seven years there on this stretch as dean of boys before a colonel friend from the service asked him to come to Pomona. He thought the frustration of youth work had ended, but discovered differently six months later.

"In my blood"

"I guess it was in my blood," he chuckled. "I went back because it was something I knew. And suddenly it was a grand new ballgame. I liked working with these boys."

Within six months, Keating had been promoted to chief supervisor and remained in that role until the transfer to the residence.

Keating exhibited tremendous faith in the boys he has worked with and their respect is evident in the friendly humor and concern toward him. That faith paid off tremendously when he got cancer of the larynx in the late 1950s and underwent surgery for removal of his larynx in May 1959.

"Those kids carried me through the biggest psychological battle of my life," he recalled.

He's not beefing about the price of beef--he earned $10,720 on it

By GEORGE MacLAREN
P-B Staff Writer

CHINO — Any day now, 12-year-old Peter Brun of 4550 Eucalyptus Ave. will be receiving a check for $10,720, the amazing price paid by a Gardena meat packer for his fourth-place steer at the Los Angeles County Fair.

Tully and Company Meats bid a surprising $10 a pound for the $1,072-pound Limousin Cross during the Junior Fair Livestock Auction.

The whole Brun family, mother and father, sisters Heidi, 16, and Rosemary, 15, and brother Jimmy, 8, were sitting in the stands when Peter led the big black animal he called Buster into the judging ring. Buster was number 68 in the auction, a number Peter will long remember.

Bidding earlier was not out of the ordinary. During the afternoon auction of Junior Fair swine and lambs, a grand champion had been bought by Frank and Reva Salter of Chino Valley Meat Packing Co. and the Chino lamb plant for $5 a pound.

The champion hog went for $3.50 a pound.

The bidding started at 75 cents a pound, which was average for beef. The bidders seemed to like the looks of Buster, with "meat in the right places," and, as the bidding price skyrocketed, the Brun family kept chanting, "higher, higher."

Peter was all smiles when he joined his family after the auction. Everyone was astonished that the price had gone so high. But it must have been the spirit of competitive bidding and Peter's smile as he stood by the animal he had been taking care of since last November that did the trick.

The Brun family lives on a 30-acre spread, and besides Angus cattle, there are goats, horses, a dog and several cats.

Peter likes to ride horses, and as a sixth-grader at St. Margaret's School, he plays baseball, football and basketball.

What does Peter plan to do with his windfall? He's going to pay back his dad the $380 it cost to buy Buster, and buy a couple more animals.

The rest will go into the bank for education.

Peter has been quite a celebrity with classmates and fellow members of the Chino Busy Farmers 4-H Club since the word went out that Buster had brought in so much money.

By comparison, the grand champion steer, an Angus weighing 1,105 pounds, was sold by a Cal Poly San Luis Abispo student for $4.75 a pound, and the reserve champion market steer was sold to the Chino Valley Meat Packing Co. for only $1 a pound.

West End briefs

OIA passenger total is 789,368

ONTARIO — The passenger count at Ontario International Airport has inched closer to the one million mark.

The August total of 126,673 boosted the number so far this year to 789,368, compared to August 1972 when the 102,432 passengers pushed the eight-month total to 674,697.

The August 1973 count also set a new record high for the third consecutive month. The previous record was set in July with 117,993 passengers, which eclipsed the June record of 112,986.

Officials expect between 1.15 million and 1.2 billion passengers this year, compared to 1,029 passengers during 1972. At the present pace, the one-million level should be reached about Thanksgiving, they added.

The August total included 105,837 passengers on scheduled flights, 14,385 on scheduled commuters, 6,057 on non-scheduled flights and 394 on alternate operations.

Open house slated at Magnolia School

CHINO — Magnolia Junior High School will have fall open house for groups three and four Tuesday night at 7:30.

The parent-faculty club will have a brief business meeting in the library followed by a back-to-school night for the parents.

Parents will then follow their students' class schedule for the evening, five minutes in each class. Teachers will give a brief overview of what will be taught and expectations for that particular class.

The parent-faculty club will sponsor a bake sale that night.

Ontario will offer after-school events

ONTARIO — The Ontario recreation division is conducting an after-school playground program at four elementary schools and two parks.

The program, which began last Monday, is being held at Arroyo, Berlyn, Elderberry and Hawthorne schools, and Bon View and De Anza Parks.

Various activities planned for the program include arts and crafts and sports events. Excursions are now being planned for Oct. 27 and Jan. 19, 1974.

The program is supervised Monday through Friday from 3-5 p.m., and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. It is geared to children in grades one to six.

4 jewelry classes on college schedule

UPLAND — Chaffey College will offer four courses in jewelry craft and one in adult chorus in the Upland area during the fall quarter.

Mrs. Wendy Atwell will teach the jewelry classes in cooperation with the Upland Recreation Department at her home at 394 Van Ness Ave.

The classes are scheduled for 7:30 to 10 p.m. Mondays through Dec. 17; Tuesdays through Dec. 18; Thursdays through Dec. 20; and from 9 a.m. to noon Tuesdays through Dec. 18.

Variety spices Montclair recreation classes

MONTCLAIR — The Montclair Recreation Department will be offering a wide variety of classes and activities during its winter-spring program beginning in October.

Classes will include archery, arts and crafts, baton, basketball, belly dancing, bicycling, cake decorating, fencing, folk dancing, guitar, knitting and crocheting, macrame, physical fitness for women, shuffleboard, symphonette, tap dancing, volleyball, weight training and yoga.

Archery for both beginners and advanced students 9 and older will be held on Saturdays from 1 to 2:30 p.m. at Monte Vista School. The first meeting will be held Oct. 1. Instructors will be Mr. and Mrs. Pete Rice. No fee will be charged.

A ceramics class for adults will be held on Thursdays from 7 to 10 p.m. beginning Oct. 4. The class will be held in the Recreation Building. Morris Van Dame will be the instructor. The 13-week course has a registration fee of $3.

Baton twirling for children from 6 to 13 will be offered on Mondays and Wednesdays from 4 to 6 p.m. beginning Oct. 1 at the Recreation Building. A $1 fee will be charged for the 13-week course. Instructor will be Miss Jeanne Ziebarth.

Basketball for adults will be offered in the north gym of Montclair High School on Mondays and Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. beginning Oct. 1. No fee will be charged.

The gym will be open for junior high and high school students on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon beginning Oct. 6.

Belly dancing for females 12 and older will be offered on Thursday evenings starting Oct. 4. An intermediate class will meet at 7 p.m. in the activity room at Montclair High School, while a beginning group will meet at 8 p.m. Mrs. Harriet Lisak will instruct the class. A $20 fee will be charged for the eight-week session.

A bicycle club for persons 12 and older will meet on Saturdays beginning Oct. 6. The group will meet in the parking lot of Montclair High School at 7:30 a.m. Each trip will be approximately 20 to 25 miles in length. Supervisor for the group will be John Simpson. No fee will be charged.

A cake-decorating class for beginners will meet on Mondays from 7 to 10 p.m. starting Oct. 1 in the Recreation Building. An intermediate class will meet at the same hours on Tuesdays beginning Oct. 2. The classes, for high school ages to adult, will be taught by Mrs. Joyce Standridge. A $4 fee for the 10-week session will be charged.

Fencing for persons 12 and above will be offered in the south gym at Montclair High School on Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. beginning Oct. 3. Dr. Francis Zold will be the instructor.

Folk dancing for beginners will be held on Thursdays from 7:30 to 10 p.m. starting Oct. 4, while an intermediate class will meet at the same hours on Sundays starting Oct. 7. Both will be held in the Recreation Building. Instructors will be Mr. and Mrs. Harve Edwards. The 13-week course will cost $4.

Guitar instruction for adults will be offered on Mondays beginning Oct. 1. Beginning students will meet from 7 to 8:15 p.m. with advanced students meeting from 8:30 to 10 p.m. Classes for children will be held on Saturdays starting Oct. 6. A beginners class for 10 to 14 year olds will meet from 10 to 11 a.m., while beginning students from 14 to 18 will meet from 11 a.m. to noon. Intermediate students, 14 to 18 years old, will meet from noon until 1 p.m. All classes will be held in the Recreation Building at a cost of $4 for 10 weeks. Miss Rosalind Hackler will instruct the classes.

Macrame for beginning adults will be held on Tuesdays starting Oct. 2 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Recreation Building. Advanced adults will meet at the same hours on Wednesdays. The 13-week course will cost $4 and be instructed by Mrs. Enid Williams.

A physical fitness class for women will be offered on Mondays and Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. starting Oct. 1 in the Activity Room of Montclair High School. A $2 fee for the 13-week session will be charged. Instructor will be Miss Debra Derho.

Senior Citizens Shuffleboard Club will meet on Saturdays at 7:30 p.m. at the Recreation Building.

Practice for the chamber orchestra

Starlite Symphonette will begin Oct. 3. Adult musicians may audition for membership by contacting the Recreation Department.

Tap dancing for persons from 6 to 18 years old will be offered on Fridays from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Recreation Building beginning Oct. 5. A $1 fee will be charged.

Volleyball for adults will be offered at no charge on Thursdays from 7 to 10 p.m. starting Oct. 4. Landon Moore will be the supervisor in the north gym at Montclair High School.

Weight training in the weight room at Montclair High School will be offered for adults and high school students on Mondays and Wednesdays beginning Oct. 1. No fee will be charged.

Yoga will be taught to both beginning and advanced students in the Activity Room at Montclair High School on Tuesdays starting Oct. 2. Beginning students will meet at 7 p.m. with advanced students meeting at 8:30 p.m. Mrs. Anne Evans will instruct the class. A $6 fee will be charged for the 13-week class. Participants should bring a blanket to sit on.

RECALLING THE PAST

Ed Keating, director of the Boys Republic residence in Pomona, sits on the front porch states, businessmen, military career men. And nearly all of the former tenants of the residence stay in touch through letters and occasional visits.

Keating is quiet about his accomplishments and wishes no honoraria with his retirement. There are no dinners or testimonials planned "that I know of and I'm not looking forward to any either," he earnestly stated.

Has it been worth it?

"By golly, yes," came his quick reply. "This has also been a tremendous therapeutic value to parents. Kids don't always have to be stinkers. We make them stinkers. Parents forget and reflects on the past. He is retiring from his job and may write a book.

they were kids once."

The native of San Francisco plans to go north into Oregon and Coos Bay. "I'll try to find a new life, I guess. I'm going to do a lot of fishing and try to get by on the retirement money. But mostly, I'm going to relax. I've got a lot of memories in my work with kids. I might be able to come up with a book or something. I don't know."

There is little question that his boys would read the book.

Assemblyman to talk about air pollution

UPLAND — Assemblyman Jerry Lewis, R-73rd Dist., will be the featured speaker at the West End Kiwanis Club's dinner meeting at the Arbor Restaurant Tuesday at 6:30 p.m.

The San Bernardino County legislator will talk about air pollution. Part of his presentation will feature a time-lapse 16mm movie, "Air Pollution in the South Coast Basin," which shows the movement of air pollution into the San Bernardino Mountains and the buildup of polluted air over the basin from Los Angeles to San Bernardino.

"As far as I'm concerned air pollution and how to control it is the No. 1 problem facing California today," Lewis said. "This film provides as dramatic a demonstration of that as I've seen."

Chino recreation group adds name

CHINO — Manuel Vixcaino, a long-time Chino resident, has been appointed to fill the seventh seat on the Chino Recreation Commission.

According to the joint powers agreement which formed the commission, the seventh member is to be selected by the members.

Success of 'Planet of the Apes' vindication for late producer

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television ratings are usually a matter of cold figures, but there is a personal story behind the extraordinarily strong statistics earned the other day by the movie "Planet of the Apes" on CBS-TV.

The film's overnight ratings in New York City and Los Angeles were overwhelming—they just about went through the roof in New York—and with his setbacks, I wish he could relish this latest vindication of his battle. He would be the last to deny that some of his movies were less than smashes, but in his "Apes" films particularly he demonstrated a showmanship in the great Hollywood tradition, and an astute instinct for capturing the public's imagination. Some of the "Apes" films have been better received than others, but overall they comprise a unique motion picture series.

Television has been anxious to get these "Apes" movies, and there is not much doubt that all five of them will be seen on the home screen. Serious network consideration has also been given to making a video series based on the films, and last week's ratings showed by "Planet of the Apes" is bound to spur even more industry interest in a possible weekly project created for television.

One of the key points video has had to consider in regard to such a project is how to get the makeup jobs done to fit into tight television schedules, for the makeup—a major point in the films' success—involved a lengthy process with the performers each day.

CBS-TV executives knew what they had in "Planet of the Apes," for the network used it to launch the new season of its Friday night movie series. And it simply obliterated shows on the competing networks in the New York-Los Angeles overnight statistics. Furthermore, it did this without much of a ratings lead-in from the premiere of the new CBS-TV situation comedy series "Calucci's Dept."

"Terrific," Arthur Jacobs probably would have said. And he would have been right.

Scribe thinks so

Burt Reynolds' TV work detrimental to movie career?

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — There's no question Burt Reynolds has become a major star, but my own feeling is that television thus far has been, if anything, a negative influence on his career and potential stature.

He has starred in two network video series, "Hawk" and "Dan August," neither of which had the kind of impact that makes overnight sensations. He has also, as a television talk show guest, capitalized even further on the famous magazine pinup photo he posed for—and, though this video aspect made his name better known, the fact is that the basic publicity came from the photograph itself.

There can be little doubt that Reynolds' pinup picture has been a big factor in making him virtually a household name, and he helped himself greatly with his sense of humor about the photo. It may be the most helpful photograph to a star's career since the famous pinup shot of Marilyn Monroe. To this televisioner, the Reynolds photo was a more immediate asset to his future than all his combined video outings.

But while the photograph helped Reynolds in terms of publicity, he has helped himself as a performer in the most essential way—by showing in motion pictures that he really has talent, magnetic big star talent. For example, his new movie, "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing," has some major flaws in it, but Reynolds' quietly virile, sympathetic performance is marked by the kind of powerful personal clarity that lets you know a genuine film headliner is on the screen.

I was really surprised by some of the low-key sympathetic moments Reynolds offered in "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing" because, while they may well be a natural extension of his movie development, they are at distinct odds with the sort of flip, wisecracking image he projects on television talk shows. I personally think this kind of video image is a detriment, a negative counteracting force, to the stature he is building in motion pictures.

Seeking Reynolds' progress as a movie name who has both charisma and ability, one has mixed feelings watching him participate in informal television programs. On the one hand, you get the notion that he may well be a very enjoyable fellow to belt a few drinks with; after all, if a man shows genuinely sympathetic qualities on a movie screen, they must somehow stem from something special within him. On the other hand, you also get the notion that now that he is stuck with a sort of sex symbol image, he is trying hard to live up to it. Too hard.

Whether television has or hasn't done much for Reynolds' career in the past is a matter of personal conjecture. But he is certainly keeping a definite connection with the home medium, as indicated by NBC-TV's announcement that he will do half a dozen late-night specials for the network this season, the first from the Leavenworth Penitentiary in Kansas, a broadcast that will air the weekend of Oct. 13-14. NBC-TV says this outing is "an entertainment program," and adds:

"Reynolds is joined by guest stars Dinah Shore, Jonathan Winters and the Merle Haggard Band. They entertain the inmates and, in turn, are entertained by some of the prisoners from Leavenworth and by others who were brought to Leavenworth from the federal penitentiary at Terre Haute, Ind., for the show."

The actor's late-night NBC-TV specials will run 90 minutes each, and executive producer Henry Jaffe has said: "The programs will be produced at different locations around the country or abroad, and each will be a 'special event' rather than a traditional television special. We will be presenting an 'anything-can-happen' talk-variety show, produced wherever Burt Reynolds happens to be and whenever he is available."

"In each one, Burt will participate in a number of activities geared to the particular location, and his background as an athlete and a stunt man, as well as a performer, will be called upon. He will be joined as a participant by major guest stars on all the shows."

The series was to have been called "The Late Burt Reynolds Show," a charming and witty title. Unfortunately, this title has been scrapped and the specials will be called "The Burt Reynolds Late Show." I'd like to think that Reynolds personally had the sense of humor to have preferred the first title.

DeLuise bombs out

Actor discovers busing audience to studio can be risky business

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Hauling audiences to a studio by bus to provide laughs for filmed situation comedy shows can be a risky business.

The other day Dom DeLuise discovered, much to his dismay, that he was bombing as he whipped through some bofo lines of his new show, "Lotsa Luck." The studio audience sat in total silence.

"It was horrible," DeLuise reported. "I thought I was reading the lines wrong. I did my best to punch them up, but still there wasn't a single laugh no matter what we did."

"Fortunately, we tape the show twice—the dress rehearsal and then the final show. One right after the other to different audiences."

"I talked to the producer and director after the first taping and told them we had to change the script around. Then they found out the audience was comprised of two busloads of mentally retarded inmates from a nearby asylum."

Jaded Southern Californians are not especially thrilled at the opportunity to sit through an hour or so on a hard seat watching television shows being filmed or taped, even for free.

The networks which use the three-camera technique requiring live audiences for Dean Martin, Flip Wilson and others, rounds up audiences from a variety of outlying communities and institutions.

Some stars such as Johnny Carson, Lucille Ball and Mary Tyler Moore draw a full house without networks or producers having to lasso a busload of laughs.

New shows, however, haven't established fans and suffer at the hands of whatever a bus disgorges.

DeLuise, a man blessed with the ability to laugh at himself, walked out on stage to warm up an audience for another show only to see row upon row of old folks in the studio.

"There was so much white hair in the place I thought Burbank had suffered its first snow storm in history," the comedian said.

"It turned out NBC had bused them all up from some retirement village in San Diego. Thank God our show dealt heavily with the mother character and was full of generation-gap jokes. They loved it and laughed a lot harder than the second audience which was made up of a more representative age group.

"The trouble with busing people is that you get all one kind of individual—old, young, sick, rural or what have you."

"Even the big stars can suffer from it. One time the NBC people asked Bob Hope if it were all right with him if they brought in a couple of buses full of sailors."

"Bob was delighted. He loves to entertain servicemen more than anyone else. He insisted that the first five or six rows be reserved for the sailors. And when he came out, sure enough, there were the sailors."

"Bob went into his monologue and bombed. The sailors didn't even smile. They just sat there stone cold. Hope was wondering where he went wrong until he discovered they were Spanish sailors and didn't understand a word of English."

"Maybe things will get better with studio audiences now that summer is over."

Bit Parts: Lee Grant and Joan Blondell will guest star on "The Carroll O'Connor Special" for CBS-TV ... David Hartman will produce a 90-minute special for ABC's "Wide World of Entertainment" ... Beah Richards and Neville Brand will guest star in an episode of "The Magician."

The doctor comments

Heart patient now has foot pains

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About four years ago I had a heart attack. Since then I have gradually initiated a swimming program and now swim about one and a half hours, four days a week. Rarely, I have chest pain and take small glycerin pills for this, also I take Serpasil, vitamin C, other vitamins and minerals.

My main problem is intermittent pain in the soles of my feet which is excruciating. It is the kind of stinging pain you sustain after distance running. In addition to heart specialists, I have seen two internists, two orthopods, two podiatrists and two neurologists. One of the latter said it was in my head. It's not, it's in my feet. I have no abnormal chemistries and my pulsations are good, but I do have a hell of a lot of intermittent pain. What can I do?

Dear Reader — Your problem obviously has no easy solution. There are some orthopedic problems involving the muscles and bone joints that might be a factor, but we'll assume on the basis of your examinations you don't have these. Vitamin deficiencies should not be a problem. This leaves the most likely cause to be involvement of the peripheral nerves that go to the soles of the feet.

On the list of things to do, you should be examined carefully for diabetes, and this means more than a fasting blood sugar, which can be normal in a person with mild diabetes. You should have a glucose tolerance test done. It's possible that diabetes may be affecting your peripheral nerves and causing this trouble, even though you might not have an obvious or severe case of diabetes.

Another disease problem which is extremely rare, but should be looked for, is the possibility of amyloidosis. A muscle biopsy needs to be done to see if you might have this. This is very rare and not likely.

If no underlying disease such as diabetic neuropathy can be found, then I would suspect that the most likely cause is entrapment of the nerves to the feet. Although you have been seen by a neurologist, not all neurologists regularly employ electrodiagnostic techniques. To study the possibility of entrapment of the nerves to the bottom of your feet you need to have measurements of nerve conduction and "distal latency." These are done by placing electrodes on the feet and lower legs and measuring the time electrical impulses move along the nerves. If nerve entrapment can be diagnosed, then it can be approached surgically.

I know how difficult it is to find someone for these types of problems, so I'll make a rare exception and suggest to you that if it becomes necessary to look for someone to study the possibility of nerve entrapment that you write to Dr. Ian McLean at Ohio State Medical Center, Columbus, Ohio, and ask for a recommendation for someone who can do these kinds of measurements in your area. I know I've put more technical terms in this letter than I usually do, but you will need them to go about unraveling the problem that you are faced with.

Finally, in a lighter vein, I'll have to say that if you have an excess amount of body weight you should get rid of it. I'm always reminded of one of my old friends who was overweight, and we used to remind him of this problem by asking him if his feet still hurt.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1351, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on losing weight, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Losing Weight" booklet.

WARNING

Adds Sec. 976 and 977 to the 1964 Civil Rights Law prohibits with certain exceptions discrimination because of sex. Since some occupations are considered more attractive to persons of one sex or the other, advertisements are placed under the Male or Female columns for the convenience of readers. Such listings are not intended to exclude persons of either sex. This newspaper strives to protect its readers against fraud, deception or injustices. Advertisements which require cash bonds or investments in stocks, samples, equipment should be investigated thoroughly. All advertising statements must be accurate. All pertaining to sales must carry the word sales and must relate some nature of work involved and not designed to mislead the reader. Any ad requiring a tuition for study courses is not considered a help wanted ad and does not belong in classification "Educational".

NO HELP WANTED AD CAN STIPULATE OR INFER A DEFINITE AMOUNT WHEN STARTING A BUSINESS.

Report any exception to this rule to Classified Advertising Manager. NA-21201
